Self-Esteem and Foreign Language Learning Fernando Rubio, 2021-02-19 Self Esteem and Foreign Language Learning deals with a topic which has been given surprisingly little attention in Second and Foreign Language Acquisition studies Although there are several studies dealing with general education this volume addresses the need to take self esteem into consideration in the language classroom and adopts both theoretical research and practical perspectives with the hope of being useful for both researchers and practitioners The book is organized into three main parts Part I serves as an introduction to self esteem Part II reports on the existing literature about the theory and research dealing with self esteem and foreign language learning and Part III includes procedures for implementation and activities for classroom applications. Self Esteem and Foreign Language Learning is edited by Fernando Rubio PhD a researcher and teacher at the University of Huelva in Spain. Most of the chapters have been written by members of the research group Affective factors in language learning which has also published a book on Multiple Intelligences and the teaching of English. Dr Jane Arnold, Dr Carmen Fonseca etc. There are two outside contributions: one is by Andrew Wright, author of numerous publications for language teachers, and the other by Veronica de Andr s, teacher trainer from the University of El Salvador, Argentina, and member of the executive board of the International Council for Self Esteem. Dr Elaine Horwitz of the University of Texas has contributed a preface.

Individual Differences and Instructed Language Learning Peter Robinson, 2002. Second language learners differ in how successfully they adapt to and profit from instruction. This book aims to show that adaptation to L2 instruction and subsequent L2 learning is a result of the interaction between learner characteristics and learning contexts. Describing and explaining these interactions is fundamentally important to theories of instructed SLA and for effective L2 pedagogy. This collection is the first to explore this important issue in contemporary task-based immersion and communicative pedagogic settings. In the first section, leading experts in individual differences research describe recent advances in theories of intelligence, L2 aptitude, motivation, anxiety, and emotion, and the relationship of native language abilities to L2 learning. In the second section, these theoretical insights are applied to empirical studies of individual differences, treatment interactions in classroom learning, experimental studies of the effects of focus on form and incidental learning, and studies of naturalistic versus instructed SLA.

Lifelong Motivation and Foreign Language Learning B r n ce Darnault, 2025-02-05. This book traces the motivational dynamics embedded within lifelong foreign language learning trajectories, examining the factors which generate and sustain motivation throughout a learner's life. Embracing a complexity approach, it views motivation as a long-term individual process that evolves along a narrative continuum developing over the course of life, personal experiences, choices, and events. This narrative inquiry delves into the captivating and unique experiences of three exceptionally motivated older adult learners who have embarked on a lifelong foreign language journey and maintained their momentum after 60. It will be relevant to researchers interested in third age language acquisition, L2 motivation, and the impact of additional language learning on wellbeing. It also offers pedagogical guidance to optimise language education quality through better appreciation and anticipation of the autonomous third age learning experience.

Teaching and Learning a Second Language Ernesto Macaro, 2005-05-27. There is increasingly wide agreement among teachers, researchers, inspectors, advisers, and policy makers that both teaching and research will benefit from being brought closer together. Hard-pressed practitioners cannot be expected to review a constant flow of conference papers, journals, and other publications, even if such items were accessibly written. This unique book synthesizes relevant research findings for the professional practitioner and highlights their implications for the quality of teaching and learning. Whether you are a teacher
