Negotiating Assimilation and Hybridity: The Identity of Chinese-Malays in Brunei Darussalam

Chang-Yau Hoon and Nur Shawatriqah Sahrifulhafiz

Abstract This chapter explores the ways in which Bruneians who are born into a Chinese-Malay family define their identity. It details how the state classifies them in terms of ‘race’, how they negotiate their bicultural practices, and the day-to-day challenges they face while growing up in what we could term a liminal space of in-betweenness. Situated against the backdrop of state-level assimilation influence, the chapter discusses the ways in which Chinese-Malays negotiate between assimilation and hybridity. By articulating the everyday experiences of between and betwixt among these biracial subjects, the chapter reveals the various forces shaping the boundaries of exclusion and inclusion, belonging and non-belonging in Brunei Darussalam.

Keywords Brunei Darussalam · Chinese-Malays · Assimilation · Identity · Hybridity · Biracialism

13.1 Introduction

The population of Brunei Darussalam is estimated at 453,600 in 2020 (Department of Economic Planning and Statistics 2021). Comprising 65.8% of the population, the majority are classified as Malay, while the second largest ethnic group—the Chinese—make up 10.2% of the population. The Malays are an internally diverse group. The Brunei Constitution and the Brunei Nationality Enactment 1961 recognises seven indigenous ethnic groups (puak jati or puak-puak Melayu)—Belait, Bisaya, Brunei (Brunei Malays), Dusun, Kedayan, Murut and Tutong—as part of the Malay race (bangsa Melayu) that comprises the dominant population of Brunei

Psychological Aspects of Social Axioms Kwok Leung, Michael Harris Bond, 2008-12-29 Humans are surrounded by trillions of stimuli Their eyes for instance can discriminate 7 500 000 colors But there is a severe limitation in the number of discriminably different stimuli that they can process at one time George Miller argued that they can handle no more than seven plus or minus two independent pieces of information at any given time Thus necessarily they must develop ways to simplify the task of processing the information that exists in their environment They do this in many ways One way is to select the stimuli that are most important in their lives what are often called values Another way is to chunk stimuli by linking them to each other so they form bundles of stimuli that can be processed as if they are one entity Generalized expectancies of what is linked with what are beliefs and these beliefs are structured into bundles see Triandis 1972 Southeast Asian Journal of Social Science ,1997 Recent Trends in Social and Behaviour Sciences Ford Lumban Gaol, Seifedine Kadry, Marie Taylor, Pak Shen Li, 2014-02-27 The human aspect plays an important role in the social sciences The behaviour of people has become a vital area of focus in the social sciences as well Recent Trends in Social and Behaviour Sciences contains papers that were originally presented at the International Congress on Interdisciplinary Behavior and Social Sciences held 4 5 November 201 Communication, Social Structure and Development in Rural Malaysia William Wilder, 2021-01-07 This is an important innovative analysis of communication and society in Pahang West Malaysia based on fieldwork carried out in Kampung Kuala Bera Dr Wilder is concerned with communication networks of all kinds as found in a long established Malay village including the uses of language small scale kinship and village based networks and higher level systems the district and the nation as a whole Dr Wilder lays particular emphasis on the role of communication in the process of economic development and on administration during a period of rapid and induced social change His study is prefaced by a detailed historical account of Pahang and a thorough sociological analysis of Kampung Kuala Bera The ethnography is meticulously detailed its special contribution includes the first ever publication of a Malay village genealogy a systematic account of birth order names a major feature of the kinship system complete figures on marital breakdowns for the whole village population and an intensive analysis of leadership in its local context This work will be of value to students of Southeast Asian societies rural sociology network studies economic development political education and the mass media in third world countries Growing up Female in Multi-Ethnic Malaysia Cynthia Joseph, 2014-08-21 This book provides a rich detailed analysis of the experiences of young women growing up in post colonial rapidly modernizing Malaysia It considers the impact of ethnicity socio economic status and school experiences and achievement It discusses the effects of Malaysia's ethnic affirmative action programmes and of the country's Islamisation It sets out and compares the life trajectories of Malay Indian and Chinese young women making use of interview and questionnaire data gathered over a long period It thereby depicts individuals' transformations as they experience maturing into adulthood against a background of social and economic changes and varying levels of inter racial tension Chinese Beliefs and Practices in Southeast Asia Hock-Tong Cheu, 2021-08-16 This book consists of fifteen chapters which can be divided into five major themes i Chinese religion ii Chinese attitudes toward religion iii Chinese spirit cults in Malaysia iv the development of local spirit cults and v major festivals celebrated in Malaysia The first section deals with three Chinese religious traditions in Malaysia in particular and other countries like Singapore Indonesia and Thailand in Southeast Asia in general The second section attempts to discuss on Chinese attitudes towards religion Chinese religious conception and its implication in their social life and how Confucian ethics have contributed to the economic success of the Chinese in Malaysia The Third section seeks to examine the various aspects of the Nine Emperor Gods the Datuk Kong Malay keramat and the spread of Malay and Chinese spirit cults to Sabah East Malaysia The fourth section deliberates on three major processes of change in the development of spirit cults in Malaysia the localization of Chinese locality cults including Tudigong and Dabogong the Sinicization of the Malay keramat and the indigenization or desinicization of an aboriginal Datuk Seman in Broga Selangor And the last section winds up with the practical aspects of celebrating festivals in Malaysia and other parts of Southeast Asia with special emphasis on festivals in general in the Chinese calendar the festival of the Nine Emperor Gods in Southeast Asia and the socio psychological aspects of the Nine Emperor Gods Vegetarian Festival in Thailand Authoritarian Populism in Malaysia A.

Munro-Kua,1996-11-13 Socio economic and political issues are dealt with selectively within a chronological historical framework covering the dramatic colonial impact of 1940 60 until the present day The state is examined from the point of view of social class as well as communalism to explain the dominance of the ruling coalition over the 37 years since independence The author argues that authoritarian populism is the concept that best fits the apparent paradox of an enduring regime via the ballot box and the extensive restrictions on the scope of democracy particularly through the repressive apparatus of detention without trial The underlying theme is a critique and explanation of Malaysia s human rights record Race, Ethnicity, and the State in Malaysia and Singapore Kwen Fee Lian,2006-07-01 Because Malaysia and Singapore share a common colonial migration and political history the racial ethnic composition of the two societies are unsurprisingly similar However since 1965 state nation formation has taken separate trajectories and this has had a differential impact on the processes of racialization and ethnicization in the two countries The contributions in this volume examine how various groups namely the Chinese Malays Tamils Eurasian and Orang Asli have accommodated or resisted the dominant influence of the state in incorporating and subordinating them Students and scholars of race and ethnicity will be interested in this work as it is the first attempt to bring together the work of several writers in documenting the consequences of state policies on ethnic formation in the region and raises theoretical issues relevant to this The
