Manufacturing Religion Russell T. McCutcheon, 1997-06-19 In this new book author Russell McCutcheon offers a powerful critique of traditional scholarship on religion focusing on multiple interrelated targets Most prominent among these are the History of Religions as a discipline Mircea Eliade one of the founders of the modern discipline recent scholarship on Eliade s life and politics contemporary textbooks on world religions and the oft repeated bromide that religion is a sui generis phenomenon McCutcheon skillfully analyzes the ideological basis for and service of the sui generis argument demonstrating that it has been used to constitute the field s object of study in a form that is ahistoric apolitical fetishized and sacrosanct As such he charges it has helped to create departments jobs and publication outlets for those who are comfortable with such a suspect construction while establishing a disciplinary ethos of astounding theoretical naivete and a body of scholarship to match Surveying the textbooks available for introductory courses in comparative religion the author finds that they uniformly adopt the sui generis line and all that comes with it As a result he argues they are not just uncritical which helps keep them popular among the audiences for which they are intended but badly disserve but actively inhibit the emergence of critical perspectives and capacities And on the geo political scale he contends the study of religion as an ahistorical category participates in a larger system of political domination and economic and cultural imperialism popularity and educational achievement The book sets out a programme for the contribution of Catholic schools to the future of the Church covering such topics as the religious education curriculum in its cognitive and affective aspects the sacramental life of the school selection of staff the issue of staff and Catholic witness and many other topics Engebretson argues that Catholic schools are a powerful key to the future of the Church and shows how within their diversity Catholic schools can be ecclesial communities which have at their heart the building up of the Church
