Thrown Among Strangers Douglas Monroy,1990 Every California schoolchild s first interaction with history begins with the missions and Indians It is the pastoralist image of course and it is a lasting one Children in elementary school hear how Father Serra and the priests brought civilization to the groveling lizard and acorn eating Indians of such communities as Yang na now Los Angeles So edified by history many of those children drag their parents to as many missions as they can Then there is the other side of the missions one that a mural decorating a savings and loan office in the San Fernando Valley first showed to me as a child On it a kindly priest holds a large cross over a kneeling Indian For some reason though the padre apparently aims not to bless the Indian but rather to bludgeon him with the emblem of Christianity This portrait too clings to the memory capturing the critical view of the missionization of California s indigenous inhabitants I carried the two childhood images with me both when I went to libraries as I researched the missions and when I revisited several missions thirty years after those family trips In this work I proceed neither to debunk nor to reconcile these contrary notions of the missions and Indians but to present a new and I hope deeper understanding of the complex interaction of the two antithetical cultures
