Migration, Class and Transnational Identities Val Colic-Peisker, 2010-10-01 Val Colic Peisker harnesses concepts and theories from sociology anthropology and political science to compare the vastly different experiences of two Croatian immigrant cohorts in the city of Perth Western Australia The populations explored represent an earlier group of working class migrants arriving from communist Yugoslavia from the 1950s to 1970s and a later group of urban professionals arriving in the 1980s and 1990s as independent or skills based migrants This latter group integrated into professional ranks but also used their Australian experience as a stepping stone in becoming part of a highly mobile global professional middle class Employing a refined theoretical analysis this rich ethnography challenges the domination of the ethnic perspective in migration studies and the idea of ethnic community itself It emphasizes the importance of class focusing on the intersection of class ethnicity and gender in the process of migration migrant incorporation and transnationalism In theorizing the connection of the two migrant cohorts with their native Croatia the study introduces concepts of ethnic and cosmopolitan transnationalism as two distinctive experiences mediated by class
