

A Spoken Word

From the lips of a mortal~
Words are spoken.
When the words are spoken
from the heart and soul,
I believe the words are true.

Sometimes a word may be uttered
from a person's deep wounded inner child,
Where confusion and misunderstanding,

Are the words we speak.

Learn to trust...
Have faith in what you do not see
with the naked eye...
Knowing that God will be your light,
If your life has been touched by God.

Mortal words will not dampen your soul...
You will be filled with,

wisdom and understanding.

Never to fear...
Words that you hear...

among the first spoken word poets as they used this oral tradition to preserve their society's cultural artifacts and traditions. These African oratory institutions underwent a transformative evolution during the Transatlantic Slave Trade and in the New World many displaced African born people continued the griot tradition expanding this practice to include their lived experiences and social realities hence modernizing spoken word poetry. The Intertextuality of Black American Spoken Word and African Griot Tradition: From the Motherland to America by Tammie Jenkins examines these relationships to show how spoken word poetry incorporates musical sampling to connect with historical events, politics, and African diasporic discourses from emancipation through the present. Using works by Meshell Ndegeocello and Ursula Rucker, Jenkins analyzes how they reimagine history, politics, and the arts to create counternarratives that challenge larger accepted social narratives. In doing so, their approach demonstrates how Black American spoken word poets communicate and build reciprocal relationships with their listening audiences across intersections of race, gender, class, and geography.
