Frugivores and seed dispersal Alejandro Estrada, T.H. Fleming, 2012-12-06 A wide variety of plants ranging in size from forest floor herbs to giant canopy trees rely on animals to disperse their seeds Typical values of the proportion of tropical vascular plants that produce fleshy fruits and have animal dispersed seeds range from 50 90% depending on habitat In this section the authors discuss this mutualism from the plant's perspective Herrera begins by challenging the notion that plant traits traditionally interpreted as being the product of fruit frugivore coevolution really are the outcome of a response counter response kind of evolutionary process He uses examples of congeneric plants living in very different biotic and abiotic environments and whose fossilizable characteristics have not changed over long periods of time to argue that there exists little or no basis for assuming that gradualistic change and environmental tracking characterizes the interactions between plants and their vertebrate seed dispersers A common theme that runs through the papers by Herrera Denslow et al and Stiles and White is the importance of the fruiting environment i.e the spatial relationships of conspecific and non conspecific fruiting plants on rates of fruit removal and patterns of seed rain Herrera and Denslow et al point out that this environment is largely outside the control of individual plant species and as a result closely coevolved interactions between vertebrates and plants are unlikely to evolve

Community Seed Banks Ronnie Vernooy, Pitambar Shrestha, Bhuwon Sthapit, 2015-05-15 Community seed banks first appeared towards the end of the 1980s established with the support of international and national non governmental organizations This book is the first to provide a global review of their development and includes a wide range of case studies Countries that pioneered various types of community seed banks include Bangladesh Brazil Ethiopia India Nepal Nicaragua the Philippines and Zimbabwe In the North a particular type of community seed bank emerged known as a seed savers network Such networks were first established in Australia Canada the UK and the USA before spreading to other countries Over time the number and diversity of seed banks has grown In Nepal for example there are now more than 100 self described community seed banks whose functions range from pure conservation to commercial seed production In Brazil community seed banks operate in various regions of the country Surprisingly despite 25 years of history and the rapid growth in number organizational diversity and geographical coverage of community seed banks recognition of their roles and contributions has remained scanty The book reviews their history evolution experiences successes and failures and reasons why challenges and prospects It fills a significant gap in the literature on agricultural biodiversity and conservation and their contribution to food sovereignty and security
