Determined to defeat such resistance the Hollywood moguls created a powerful trade organization that worked closely with the US State Department in an effort to expand the American film industry's dominance worldwide. This book offers insight into and analysis of European efforts to overcome the American film industry's pre-eminence. It focuses particularly on Britain, Hollywood's largest overseas market of the interwar years; France, a nation with an alternative vision of cinema; and Belgium, which was entrusted by the Vatican with coordination of the international movement against depravity in films. In contributing to the understanding of American popular culture at home and abroad, this study demonstrates Hollywood's role in orchestrating the American Century.

Consuming Hong Kong Gordon Mathews, Tai-lok Lui, 2001-10-01 Consumption forms an essential part of Hong Kong people's lives today but until now little serious attention has been paid to it. This book fills this gap in a fascinating way. The contributors to this volume explore such topics as the coming of shopping malls to Hong Kong; tenants' senses of home in cramped public housing; the experiences of movie-going; alcohol as a marker of social class; the pursuit of fashion; Chinese art and identity among Hong Kong collectors; the dream and reality of owning a flat; Lan Kwai Fong and its mystique; the McDonald's Snoopy craze of fall 1998; cultural identity and consumption in Hong Kong today. This book shows how the detailed ethnographic study of consumption in Hong Kong can lead to a deeper understanding of Hong Kong life as a whole as well as of consumption in the world at large.

Cinemas and Cinema-Going in the United Kingdom: Decades of Decline, 1945-65 Sam Manning, 2020-03-31 Cinema-going was the most popular commercial leisure activity in the first half of the twentieth century, peaking in 1946 with 1.6 billion recorded admissions. Though going to the pictures remained a popular pastime, the transition to peacetime altered citizens' leisure habits. During the 1950s, increased affluence, the growth of television ownership, and the diversification of leisure led to rapid declines in attendance. Cinema attendances fell in all regions but the speed, nature, and extent of decline varied widely across the United Kingdom. By linking national developments to detailed case studies of Belfast and Sheffield, this book adds nuance to our understanding of regional variations in film exhibition, audience habits, and cinema-going experiences during a period of profound social and cultural change. Drawing on a wide range of quantitative and qualitative sources, Cinemas and Cinema-Going conveys the diverse nature of this important industry and the significance of place as a determinant of film attendance in post-war Britain.

It is about leisure, lifestyle, and markets in today's consumer culture. In 1986, one measure of people's use of time in Britain identified television watching as the major activity for both men and women outside paid employment and sleeping.
