Fashioning Acadians Hilary Doda,2023-10-24 What people wore in the distant past is often challenging to determine owing to the disintegration of natural textiles and materials over time Yet when new findings from archaeological excavations are compared with documentation about early Acadia a fascinating picture of the society's early fashions is revealed Fashioning Acadians is a history of clothesmaking and dress in Acadia from 1650 to 1750 Through the analysis of four Acadian settlements in what is now Nova Scotia Hilary Doda uncovers the regional fashions and trends that had begun to emerge prior to the violence of the deportations of 1755 Men's and women's wardrobes are described from head to toe from headdresses and hairstyles down to stockings and shoes along with accessories such as buttons buckles and jewellery While Acadians retained many aspects of the fashion systems of France New France and New England a distinctive Acadian identity can be seen to take shape as their dress evolved and was influenced by other regional styles Exploring the possibilities of a new methodology for identifying lost or decayed garments Doda argues that surviving notions sewing tools and accessories the small finds of archaeological sites are important sources of information not only about domestic life but about manufacturing processes dress and textile cultures and the influence of intersecting fashion systems in colonial spaces Fashioning Acadians expands our understanding of Acadian lives and their connections to both the Atlantic world of goods and the landscapes of Nova Scotia

Prehistoric Textiles E. J.W. Barber, 2021-11-09 This pioneering work revises our notions of the origins and early development of textiles in Europe and the Near East Using innovative linguistic techniques along with methods from palaeobiology and other fields it shows that spinning and pattern weaving began far earlier than has been supposed Prehistoric Textiles made an unsurpassed leap in the social and cultural understanding of textiles in humankind's early history Cloth making was an industry that consumed more time and effort and was more culturally significant to prehistoric cultures than anyone assumed before the book's publication The textile industry is in fact older than pottery and perhaps even older than agriculture and stockbreeding It probably consumed far more hours of labor per year in temperate climates than did pottery and food production put together And this work was done primarily by women Up until the Industrial Revolution and into this century in many peasant societies women spent every available moment spinning weaving and sewing The author Elizabeth Wayland Barber demonstrates command of an almost unbelievably disparate array of disciplines from historical linguistics to archaeology and paleobiology from art history to the practical art of weaving Her passionate interest in the subject matter leaps out on every page Barber a professor of linguistics and archaeology developed expert sewing and weaving skills as a small girl under her mother's tutelage One could say she had been born and raised to write this book Because modern textiles are almost entirely made by machines we have difficulty appreciating how time consuming and important the premodern textile industry was This book opens our eyes to this crucial area of prehistoric human culture
