Goetz, 2015-12-07 This book represents the collected thinking of a few people who have had strong personal connections to Dr Song Nai Rhee Because the integration of faith and learning is a core value held by Dr Rhee the various authors have written essays on this topic in honor of his life and work Such a book is typically referred to as a Festschrift a celebratory writing given for a special person Dr Rhee's robust career at Northwest Christian College University is celebrated by the essays brought together in this book. All the authors have known Dr Rhee as students or as academic colleagues or both. What they write about ranges from topics found in biblical literature to expressly theological ideas to matters that are eminently practical. Yet each essay is held in place by its relevancy to the ongoing conversations about how faith and learning are integrated in the context of the Christian liberal arts university. More important, each author has a deep and abiding respect for Dr Song Nai Rhee. Big Bang Being Isabel Rimanoczy, Ervin Laszlo, 2017-09-08. When asked for the definition of mental health and fulfillment, Sigmund Freud had two words: lieben and arbeiten—love and work. In this book, we will find how 16 business leaders brought together their compassion, their caring for others, and the world with their work. True, only on rare occasions are we able to meet the person behind initiatives that made a positive impact on the world; even less have an in-depth view into their feelings, concerns, hesitations, doubts, and most intimate thoughts. What is seen publicly is the initiative, the impact on the bottom line, and the community or sometimes on the environment. Yet it is their personal stories that can be most inspirational, since they draw our attention to the fact that amazing achievements start in simple ways with just the thinking of one individual. And when we find out that the exemplary individuals have many very human aspects that we identify with and find in ourselves, it brings us closer and particularly it may even trigger in us the question: If she could do it, I wonder what could I do. The interviews, however, were only the beginning of the journey. The lessons of the interviews made it possible to identify how we can all develop a sustainability mindset; in other words, the thinking and the being that can take us from breakdown to breakthrough on this planet. Each one of us can play a part in leading the change; in fact, we are already playing a part; we are just not necessarily aware if that is the part we would like to play or aware that we choose the change we are contributing to unfold. Part I presents the 16 leaders, including a summary of their story and their initiatives. Part II goes a little deeper as you will find two dimensions that were not obvious but which underlie the way these business leaders championed the initiatives: the Thinking and the Being. Part III explores why sustainability change is so slow and addresses the elephant in the room: the values and beliefs that anchor our Western Weltanschauung or worldview Part IV addresses the alternatives that we have to convert the unsustainable values into opportunities that will permit humanity to thrive and to break through the obstructions that prevent us from stasis Finally Part V takes us beyond the tipping point and presents us with an opportunity to evolve as humans developing a new way of thinking and being on this planet This transformation is so radical and significant that the author calls it the Big Bang Being
