Conference (U.S.), 1973 The Adult Learner Malcolm Knowles, Malcolm S. Knowles, Elwood F. Holton III, Petra A.

Robinson, Richard A. Swanson, RICHARD SWANSON, 2020-12-20 How do you tailor education to the learning needs of adults

Do they learn differently from children How does their life experience inform their learning processes These were the questions at the heart of Malcolm Knowles pioneering theory of andragogy which transformed education theory in the 1970s The resulting principles of a self directed experiential problem centred approach to learning have been hugely influential and are still the basis of the learning practices we use today Understanding these principles is the cornerstone of increasing motivation and enabling adult learners to achieve The 9th edition of The Adult Learner has been revised to include Updates to the book to reflect the very latest advancements in the field The addition of two new chapters on diversity and inclusion in adult learning and andragogy and the online adult learner An updated supporting website This website for the 9th edition of The Adult Learner will provide basic instructor aids including a PowerPoint presentation for each chapter Revisions throughout to make it more readable and relevant to your practices If you are a researcher practitioner or student in education an adult learning practitioner training manager or involved in human resource development this is the definitive book in adult learning you should not be without Grassland-Invertebrate Interactions: Plant Productivity, Resilience and

Community Dynamics Ivan Hiltbold, Michael Rostás, 2017-10-13 Natural and anthropogenic grasslands such as prairies meadows rangelands and pastures cover more than 40% of the planet's surface and provide a wealth of ecological services Grasslands alone store one third of the global carbon stocks and grass roots through their specific architectures ensure water cycling and prevent the erosion of fertile topsoil In addition grasslands are of vital importance for human food production as vast areas of rangelands and pastures provide feed for livestock Pastoral legumes mobilize atmospheric nitrogen and improve fertility of arable soils Not least grasslands are an essential genetic resource The three major crop species that feed half of the global population have been bred from wild grasses Ancestors of our contemporary turf cultivars common components of urban landscapes and recreation spaces originated from wild grasslands Although natural and managed grasslands represent pivotal ecosystems many aspects of how they function are poorly understood To date most attention has focused on grassland primary producers i.e. forage plants and mammalian grazers but invertebrates are likely to play an equally if not more important role in grassland ecosystem functioning In Australian pastures for example the biomass of root feeding scarab beetles can often exceed that of sheep and plant damage caused by invertebrates is sometimes equivalent to an average dairy cow s grass consumption Indeed grasslands are one of the most densely populated ecosystems with invertebrates being probably the most important engineers that shape both plant communities and the grassland as a whole In a rapidly changing world with increasing anthropogenic pressure on grasslands this Research Topic focuses on 1 How grassland habitats shape invertebrate biodiversity 2 Impacts of climate change on grassland invertebrate interactions 3 Plant and invertebrate pest monitoring and management 4 Plant mediated multitrophic interactions and biological control in grasslands 5 Land use and grassland invertebrates 6 Plant resistance to invertebrate pests Given the increasing demand for food and land for human habitation unprecedented threats to grasslands are anticipated Resilient to some extent these key ecosystems need to be better comprehended to guarantee their sustainable management and ecosystem services
