Soul Knowledge:

Modes of Knowledge and the Transcendental Henri Oosthout, 1991-01-01 The philosophy of Plotinus is usually depicted as a quest for the absolute outside and beyond the world of human knowledge and experience Yet in the late treatise Ennead 5 3 49 Plotinus shows himself a philosopher of the transcendental rather than of the transcendent Starting from a critical analysis of the idea of self knowledge he develops a world view in which central notions of his metaphysics are represented not as different hypostases or transcendent beings but as limiting cases of reality as we human beings know it Fundamental to this world view is Plotinus assumption that a close analogy can be established between the psychological and the physical description of man

Human Knowledge According to Saint Maximus the Confessor Nevena Dimitrova, 2016-10-12 This book is dedicated to the synergic process of divine human communion in the humanly possible knowledge of God according to Saint Maximus the Confessor These various types of knowledge play an important but as yet unexplored role in Maximus the Confessor's teaching on God which in many respects appears to be a synthesis and culmination of the Greek patristic tradition and the antecedent of ancient pre Christian and Christian philosophy Focus on this problem brings forth the major issues of Maximus psychology the soul body relationship and a detailed examination of the cognitive capacities of the soul including the perception of the senses rational activity and operations of the mind The indivisibility of the gnoseological issues from medieval man is traced in an examination of the cognitive levels within the trichotomic structure of practical philosophy natural contemplation and theology The two methods both affirmative cataphatic and negative apophatic demonstrate the two rational discourses in human knowledge of God Special attention is given to the understanding of hexis and gnomi concepts and their crucial place in the cognitive structure leading to knowledge of God as Goodness and of God as Truth
