Invoking Empire Darren Reid, 2025-08-19 Invoking Empire examines the histories of Canada South Africa Australia and New Zealand during the transitional decades between 1860 1900 when each gained some degree of self government yet still remained within the sovereignty of the British Empire It applies the conceptual framework of imperial citizenship to nine case studies of settlers and Indigenous peoples who lived through these decades to make two main arguments It argues that colonial subjects adapted imperial citizenship to both support and challenge settler sovereignty revealing the continuing importance of imperial authority in self governing settler spaces It also posits that imperial citizenship was rendered inoperable by a combination of factors in both Britain and the colonies highlighting the contingency of settler colonialism on imperial governmental structures and challenging teleological assumptions that the rise of settler nation states was an inevitable result of settler self government Faith and Narrative Keith E. Yandell, 2001-08-09 From epic to limerick novel to anecdote literary narratives engage and entertain us From autobiography and biography to accounts of familial generations narratives define communities Myths and histories loom large in religious traditions as well Recently the importance of narrative to ethics and religion has become a pervasive theme in several scholarly disciplines In the essays presented here a distinguished roster of scholars addresses a range of issues associated with this theme focusing especially on questions concerning narrative's contribution to knowledge Cultures of Memory in the Nineteenth Century Katherine Haldane Grenier, Amanda R. Mushal, 2020-06-08 This collection provides a long overdue examination of the nineteenth century as a crucible of new commemorative practices Distinctive memory cultures emerged during this period which would fundamentally reshape public and private practices of remembrance in the modern world The essays in this volume bring together scholars of History Literature Art History and Musicology to explore uses of memory in nineteenth century empire building and constructions of national identity cultures of sentiment and mourning practices and discourses of race and power Contributors approach the topic through case studies of Europe the United States and the British Empire Their analyses of nineteenth century innovations in commemoration at both the personal and the larger civic and political levels will appeal to students and scholars of memory and of the nineteenth century world

Honest To Goodness Martin Prozesky, 2019-03-12 Honest to Goodness proposes a new Christian presence that is free of dogmatism exclusivism and biblicism It charts a way back to the spiritual and ethical revolution begun by Jesus of Nazareth one that can make a vital difference to needless evils such as bigotry environmental destruction poverty and violence The book reveals the author's experience of living under against and after apartheid insisting that a faith that does not confront this world's evils is no faith at all but a dangerous betrayal of all that is good beautiful and true Honest to Goodness unflinchingly identifies the grave moral shortcomings that are embedded in traditional Christian beliefs and practices and proposes ways of transforming them into harmony with the divine goodness that the author discerns everywhere Embracing a world of religious diversity science and creative philosophy the book describes a new way of experiencing and expressing the divine It defends faith by moving beyond both theism and atheism

Last Outpost on the Zulu Frontiers Graham Dominy, 2016-04-15 Small and isolated in the Colony of Natal Fort Napier was long treated like a temporary outpost of the expanding British Empire Yet British troops manned this South African garrison for over seventy years Tasked with protecting colonists the fort became even more significant as an influence on and reference point for settler society Graham Dominy's Last Outpost on the Zulu Frontier reveals the unexamined but pivotal role of Fort Napier in the peacetime public dramas of the colony Its triumphalist colonial themed pageantry belied colonists' worries about their own vulnerability As Dominy shows the cultural political and economic methods used by the garrison compensated for this perceived weakness Settler elites married their daughters to soldiers to create and preserve an English speaking oligarchy At the same time garrison troops formed the backbone of a consumer market that allowed colonists to form banking and property interests that consolidated their control

Visions for Racial Equality Harri Englund, 2022-02-17 A rich and innovative look at the rise and demise of a unique vision for racial equality in nineteenth century Africa

The Nightwatchman Hlonipha Mokoena, 2025-08 The Nightwatchman Essays on Portraiture and the Black Male Figure in Colonial South Africa brings into focus the African policeman as a subject of portraiture While colonial governments co-opted and conscripted Africans into military and policing services it was after the Zulu defeat of the English in the battle of Isandlwana that a genre of photography developed around images of the Zulu warrior and Zulu policeman In this illustrated book Hlonipha Mokoena extends the literature on colonial ethnographic photography by creating a narrative of nightwatchman portraiture from the rich archive of images. Although the origins of this genre lay in the representation of Fingoes amaMfengu during the frontier wars, she argues that an ethnological spectacle of the Zulu male body was inaugurated after the last Zulu king Cetshwayo was photographed as a posing subject. While much research has focussed on the African man employed in emasculating labour or as a functionary of settler power, this book shifts debates about how the body moves in history. Placed in uniform, the male subject becomes aestheticised and admired. Mokoena focuses less on the idiosyncrasies of the uniform than on the sartorial selection processes and co-optation of colonial aesthetic culture that constructed the idea of the Nonqgqayi or nightwatchman as a fully formed photographic presence. The beauty captured in these images upends conceptions of colonial photography as a tool of oppression. In its focus on the figure of the black and brown fighting man, The Nightwatchman offers an innovative work on the history of portraiture and dress in colonial South Africa. Incorporating insights from African history, art history, anthropology, and critical theory, it offers new insights about the use of men of colour in colonial warfare and new avenues for the interpretation of visual representations of the black male figure.

Shaping Natural History and Settler Society Tanja Hammel, 2019-08-23. This book explores the life and work of Mary Elizabeth Barber, a British-born settler scientist who lived in the Cape during the nineteenth century. It provides a lens into a range of subjects within the history of knowledge and science, gender, and social history, postcolonial critical heritage, and archival studies. The book examines the international importance of the life and works of a marginalized scientist, the instrumentalisation of science to settlers' political concerns, and reveals the pivotal but largely silenced contribution of indigenous African experts. Including a variety of material, visual, and textual sources, this study explores how these artefacts are archived and displayed in museums and critically analyses their content and silences. The book traces Barber's legacy across three continents in collections and archives, offering insights into the politics of memory and history-making. At the same time, it forges a nuanced argument incorporating study of the North and South, the history of science and social history, and the past and the present.

Leaving The Fold Edward T. Babinski, 2003-06-30. This riveting new collection offers testimonies of former fundamentalists who became disillusioned with their churches and left. Presenting more than two dozen personal journeys, this book gives a clear picture of what attracts a person to the fundamentalist faith and what can drive believers away from their religion. Photos throughout.
