The Observation Of Savage Peoples:

The Observation of Savage Peoples Joseph-Marie Degerando, 2004 All the major techniques of inquiry which anthropology students now take for granted were first set out in this book In 1800 Degerando wrote these Considerations on the Various Methods to Follow in the Observation of Savage Peoples as a memoir to serve as guidance to the members of the Societe des Observateurs de l'Homme in an impending expedition to Australia Degerando's originality lies in his recognizing and stating that the observations of previous explorers were casual and superficial The advice to the members of the expedition listed topics about which observations should be made and how they should be made First published in 1969

The Observation of Savage Peoples Joseph-Marie baron de Gérando, 1969 The Observation of Savage Peoples Joseph-Marie baron de Gérando, 1969 The Observation of Savage Peoples Joseph-Marie Degerando, 2023-09-01 This title is part of UC Press's Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Press's mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice reach and impact Drawing on a backlist dating to 1893 Voices Revived makes high quality peer reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print on demand technology This title was originally published in 1969 The Demon of the Continent Joshua David Bellin, 2012-06-30 In recent years the study and teaching of Native American oral and written art have flourished During the same period there has been a growing recognition among historians anthropologists and ethnohistorians that Indians must be seen not as the voiceless nameless faceless Other but as people who had a powerful impact on the historical development of the United States Literary critics however have continued to overlook Indians as determinants of American rather than specifically Native American literature The notion that the presence of Indian peoples shaped American literature as a whole remains unexplored In The Demon of the Continent Joshua David Bellin probes the complex interrelationships among Native American and Euro American cultures and literatures from the mid seventeenth to the mid nineteenth centuries He asserts that cultural contact is at the heart of American literature For Bellin previous studies of Indians in American literature have focused largely on the images Euro American writers constructed of indigenous peoples and have thereby only perpetuated those images Unlike authors of those earlier studies Bellin refuses to reduce Indians to static antagonists or fodder for a Euro American imagination Drawing on works such as Henry David Thoreau's Walden William Apress's A Son of the Forest and little known works such as colonial Indian conversion narratives he explores the ways in which these texts reflect and shape the intercultural world from which they arose In doing so Bellin reaches surprising conclusions that Walden addresses economic clashes and partnerships between Indians and whites that William Bartram's Travels encodes competing and interpenetrating systems of Indian and white landholding that Catherine Sedgwick's Hope Leslie enacts the antebellum drama of Indian conversion that James Fenimore Cooper and Henry Wadsworth Longfellow struggled with Indian authors such as George Copway and David Cusick for physical ideological and literary control of the nation The Demon of the Continent proves Indians to be actors in the dynamic processes in which America and its literature are inescapably embedded Shifting the focus from textual images to the sites of material ideological linguistic and aesthetic interaction between peoples Bellin reenvisions American literature as the product of contact conflict accommodation and interchange

Evans,1969 French Modern Paul Rabinow,1989 Paul Rabinow's study of space and society power and knowledge in France from the 1830s through the 1930s uses tools from anthropology philosophy and cultural criticism to make fascinating connections between diverse protagonists and domains In each of these domains ranging from medicine to the layout of colonial cities Rabinow describes the creation of norms and the search for forms adequate for understanding and regulating what became known as modern society He also focuses on an unexplored middle ground between the masters of high culture and the experiences of ordinary life which he calls middling modernism Paul Rabinow is Professor of Anthropology at the University of California at Berkeley His most recent books include Michel Foucault Beyond Structuralism and Hermeneutics with Hubert Dreyfus and The Foucault Reader The Imprisoned Guest Elisabeth Gitter,2011-04-01 The resurrected story of a deaf blind girl and the man who brought her out of silence In 1837 Samuel Gridley Howe director of Boston's Perkins Institution for the Blind heard about a bright deaf blind seven year old the daughter of New Hampshire farmers At once he resolved to rescue her from the darkness and silence of the tomb And indeed thanks to Howe and an extraordinary group of female teachers Laura Bridgman learned to finger spell to read raised letters and to write legibly and even eloquently Philosophers poets educators theologians and early psychologists hailed Laura as a moral inspiration and a living laboratory for the most controversial ideas of the day She quickly became a major tourist attraction and many influential writers and reformers visited her or wrote about her But as the Civil War loomed and her girlish appeal faded the public began to lose interest By the time Laura died in 1889 she had been wholly eclipsed by the prettier more ingratiating Helen Keller The Imprisoned Guest retrieves Laura Bridgman's forgotten life placing it in the context of nineteenth century

American social intellectual and cultural history Her troubling tumultuous relationship with Howe who rode Laura's achievements to his own fame but could not cope with the intense demanding adult she became sheds light on the contradictory attitudes of a progressive era in which we can find some precursors of our own
