

THE OBSERVER'S WORLD AIRCRAFT DIRECTORY

A veritable mine of information and an indispensable complement to the annual Observer's Book of Aircraft on the bookshelf of the air minded, The Observer's World Aircraft Directory is the most compact and up-to-date guide to the world of aviation available; an easily referable directory for all interested in aircraft today. The Observer's World Aircraft Directory contains numerous invaluable reference features, such as complete catalogues of the world's current aviation records; the world's airlines with their equipment and principal routes; the world's air forces, their equipment and insignia; details of all current air-launched missiles; glossaries to the bewildering new fixed-wing aircraft and rotorcraft, aero engine and missile terminology that has evolved in recent years, and many other fascinating features.

Encyclopaedic in scope, The Observer's World Aircraft Directory details more than three hundred and fifty individual aircraft types—virtually every important aeroplane likely to be seen in the world's skies—illustrating them with photographs and detailed general arrangement silhouettes. These are arranged in carefully planned groups which, with the aid of a fore-edge guide, facilitate the rapid identification of an aircraft. A detailed specification and biographical notes are provided for each aircraft, which range from the latest shapes in the sky, such as Britain's Hawker P.1127 strike fighter and Poland's TS-11 Iskra jet trainer, to that grand old lady of the world's air routes, the Douglas DC-3, and such survivors of the Second World War as the Chance Vought Corsair, the Douglas B-26 Invader and the Republic Thunderbolt.

Compiled by William Green, author of The Observer's Book of Aircraft, The Observer's World Aircraft Directory is to be published in June.
