The Observers Of Ancient And Roman Britain:

The Observer's Book of Ancient and Roman Britain Harold Priestley, 1979 A Date with the Two Cerne Giants Michael J. Allen, 2024-10-15 The date of the Cerne Giant has long been a matter for debate as exemplified by a public and televised debate of March 1996 published as The Cerne Giant An Antiquity on Trial 1999 Oxbow Books Excavations were conducted in 2020 by the National Trust in the centenary year of its ownership of the Giant The excavations were limited and targeted in extent and scope the aim was to date the actual construction of the iconic figure by absolute dating methods OSL As the 1999 publication explained the jury was still out with advocates for a prehistoric origin one connected to the period of the Civil War or a more modern one In the event the dates were a complete surprise falling within the Anglo Saxon period The research has provided an accurate scientifically verified date for the Cerne Giant These unexpected results together with the land use history and ominous disappearance of the Giant for six centuries provide the platform for reconsideration and new discussion and debate Part 1 deals with new research the historical background and aims the excavation results stratigraphic finds geoarchaeological interpretation land use history environmental land snails and discussion Part 2 is the wider discussion and implications derived from the results and places the Giant in his local and Saxon context Part 3 begins with summaries of the other two excavated hill figures the Long Man of Wilmington and the Uffington White Horse followed by a series of essays from leading archaeologists historians and experts in early medieval iconography Imagining Roman Britain Virginia Hoselitz, 2015 An examination of how the Roman past was perceived and used by Victorian Britain The authority of classical texts was challenged in the mid Victorian era through the unearthing of a very different Rome in the material remains under British soil Developments in archaeology created a new picture of Roman Britain as wealthy and civilized an image which sat more comfortably with the Victorians own changing view of empire as they themselves became an imperial power Changing intellectual ideas ensured that the Roman heritage could no longer be seen solely as the preserve of the classically educated upper class excavating with a spade allowed a larger audience to participate and own the Roman past This book explores the whole phenomena using archaeological activity in four British provincial towns Caerleon Cirencester Colchester and Chester to offer an explanation of how and why it happened and providing authoritative and fresh insights into the way in which Victorian archaeology emerged developed and altered how the modern world understood the ancient In the process it brings to the fore the frequently contradictory and confused ideas about Roman Britain in the Victorian imagination VIRGINIA HOSELITZ gained her PhD at the Department of Classics and Ancient History University of Bristol The Christian Observer ,1834 The Student and Intellectual Observer of Science, Literature and Art ,1868 The INTELLECTUAL Observer ,1863 The Student, and Intellectual Observer ,1869 The Christian observer [afterw.] The Christian observer and advocate ,1868 Children's Books of the Year ,1977 Pinning Down the Past Mike Corbishley, 2014-04-17 In a relatively short period of time the pursuit of archaeology has evolved from an antiquarian interest to a specialised scientific activity Part of this evolution has always included the interest of the public and archaeologists efforts to educate them As each new method and technique is developed and each new specialism is created the challenge of making archaeology available as a learning resource grows with it Today for example the issues which surround archaeology and heritage such as the pressures of tourism on sites now form part of many formal educational curricula This book the first to deal with the subject in such depth examines the place of education and outreach within the wider archaeological community Written by one of Britain s leading archaeological educationalists it charts the sometimes difficult and painful growth and development of education and archaeology Packed full of informative and enlightening case studies from the circus at Colchester to Sutton Hoo and Hadrian s Wall this work examines exactly how we have reached the point we are at where that place is and suggests areas for future development By drawing upon many decades of experience at the front line of archaeological education the author has produced a key text that will play a major role in the on going development of the heritage industry Publisher s website
