The Development of Neolithic House Societies in Orkney Colin Richards,Richard Jones,2016-04-30 Considering that Orkney is a group of relatively small islands lying off the northeast coast of the Scottish mainland its wealth of Neolithic archaeology is truly extraordinary An assortment of houses chambered cairns stone circles standing stones and passage graves provides an unusually comprehensive range of archaeological and architectural contexts Yet in the early 1990s there was a noticeable imbalance between 4th and 3rd millennium cal BC evidence with house structures and villages being well represented in the latter but minimally in the former As elsewhere in the British Isles the archaeological visibility of the 4th millennium cal BC in Orkney tends to be dominated by the monumental presence of chambered cairns or tombs In the 1970s Claude Lévi Strauss conceived of a form of social organization based upon the house societies maisons in order to provide a classification for social groups that appeared not to conform to established anthropological kinship structures In this approach the anchor point is the house understood as a conceptual resource that is a consequence of a strategy of constructing and legitimizing identities under ever shifting social conditions Drawing on the results of an extensive program of fieldwork in the Bay of Firth Mainland Orkney the text explores the idea that the physical appearance of the house is a potent resource for materializing the dichotomous alliance and descent principles apparent in the archaeological evidence for the early and later Neolithic of Orkney It argues that some of the insights made by Lévi Strauss in his basic formulation of societies maisons are extremely relevant to interpreting the archaeological evidence and providing the parameters for a social narrative of the material changes occurring in Orkney between the 4th and 2nd millennia cal BC The major excavations undertaken during the Cuween Wideford Landscape Project provided an unprecedented depth and variety of evidence for Neolithic occupation bridging the gap between domestic and ceremonial architecture and form exploring the transition from wood to stone and relationships between the living and the dead and the role of material culture The results are described and discussed in detail here enabling tracing of the development and fragmentation of societies maisons over a 1500 year period of Northern Isles prehistory      Tracking Environmental Change Using Lake Sediments John P. Smol,H.J. Birks,William M. Last,2006-04-11 This third volume in the Developments in Paleoenvironmental Research series deals with the major terrestrial algal and siliceous indicators used in paleolimnology Other volumes deal with the acquisition and archiving of lake sediment cores chronological techniques and large scale basin analysis methods Volume 1 physical and geochemical parameters and methods Volume 2 zoological techniques Volume 4 and statistical and data handling methods

Volume 5 These monographs will provide sufficient detail and breadth to be useful handbooks for both seasoned practitioners as well as newcomers to the area of paleolimnology Although the chapters in these volumes target mainly lacustrine settings many of the techniques described can also be readily applied to fluvial glacial marine estuarine and peatland environments

El Mirón Cave, Cantabrian Spain Lawrence Guy Straus, Manuel R. González Gonzales Morales, 2012-04-16 Though known as a site since 1903 El Mirón Cave in the Cantabrian Mountains of northern Spain remained unexcavated until a team from the universities of New Mexico and Cantabria began ongoing excavations in 1996 This large deeply stratified cave allowed the team to apply cutting edge techniques of excavation recording and multidisciplinary analysis in the meticulous study of a site that has become a new reference sequence for the classic Cantabrian region The excavations uncovered the long history of human occupation of the cave extending from the end of the Middle Paleolithic through the Upper Paleolithic up to the modern era This volume comprehensively describes the background information on the setting the site the chronology and the sedimentology It then focuses on the biological and archaeological records of the Holocene levels pertaining to Mesolithic Neolithic Chalcolithic and Bronze Age Archaeologists anthropologists and historians will be drawn to this study and its extensive findings dated by some seventy five radiocarbon assays
