

A scenic view of a beach at dusk. In the foreground, a campfire with bright orange and yellow flames is burning. The fire is set on a sandy beach. In the background, the ocean is calm, reflecting the colors of the sky. A small boat is visible on the water. The sky is a mix of deep blue, purple, and pink. The overall mood is peaceful and serene.

The Geography of the Ocean Anne-Flore Laloë,2016-04-14 Despite the fact that the vast majority of the earth s surface is made up of oceans there has been surprisingly little work by geographers which critically examines the ocean space and our knowledge and perceptions of it This book employs a broad conceptual and methodological framework to analyse specific events that have contributed to the production of geographical knowledge about the ocean These include but are not limited to Christopher Columbus first transatlantic journey the mapping of nonexistent islands the establishment of transoceanic trade routes the discovery of largescale water movements the HMS Challenger expedition the search for the elusive Terra Australis Incognita the formulation of the theory of continental drift and the mapping of the seabed Using a combination of original empirical archival material and cartographic and theoretical sources this book uniquely brings together fascinating narratives throughout history to produce a representation and mapping of geographical oceanic knowledge It questions how we know what we know about the oceans and how this knowledge is represented and mapped The book then uses this representation and mapping as a way to coherently trace the evolution of oceanic spatial awareness In recent years particularly in historical geography discovering and knowing the ocean space has been a completely separate enterprise from discovering and colonising the lands beyond it There has been such focus on studying colonised lands yet the oceans between them have been neglected This book gives the geographical ocean a voice to be acknowledged as a space where history geography and indeed historical geography took place

The ocean as a health-resort: a handbook of practical information William Samuel Wilson,1881 On the Ocean Sir Barry Cunliffe,2017-12-15 For humans the sea is and always has been an alien environment Ever moving and ever changing in mood it is a place without time in contrast to the land which is fixed and scarred by human activity giving it a visible history While the land is familiar even reassuring the sea is unknown and threatening By taking to the sea humans put themselves at its mercy It has often been perceived to be an alien power teasing and cajoling The sea may give but it takes Why then did humans become seafarers Part of the answer is that we are conditioned by our genetics to be acquisitive animals we like to acquire rare materials and we are eager for esoteric knowledge and society rewards us well for both Looking out to sea most will be curious as to what is out there a mysterious island perhaps but what lies beyond Our innate inquisitiveness drives us to explore Barry Cunliffe looks at the development of seafaring on the Mediterranean and the Atlantic two contrasting seas the Mediterranean without a significant tide enclosed and soon to become familiar the Atlantic with its frightening tidal ranges an ocean without end We begin with the Middle Palaeolithic hunter gatherers in the eastern Mediterranean building simple vessels to make their remarkable crossing to Crete and we end in the early years of the sixteenth century with sailors from Spain Portugal and England establishing the limits of the ocean from Labrador to Patagonia The message is that the contest between humans and the sea has been a driving force perhaps the driving force in human history Catalog of Copyright Entries Library of Congress.
