The Architecture and Dynamics of Developing Mind Andreas Demetriou, Anastasia Efklides, Maria Platsidou, 1993

This Monograph presents a theory of cognitive development. The theory argues that the mind develops across three fronts. The first refers to a general processing system that defines the general potentials of mind to develop cognitive strategies and skills. The second refers to a hypercognitive system that governs self understanding and self regulation. The third involves a set of specialized structural systems that are responsible for the representation and processing of different reality domains.

The Architecture of the Mind Peter Carruthers, 2006-09-28. Providing a comprehensive development and defense of one of the guiding assumptions of evolutionary psychology that the human mind is composed of a large number of semi independent modules, this book is a useful reading for those with an interest in the nature and organisation of the mind. The Development of the Mediated Mind Joan M. Lucariello, 2004. This is a festschrift for Katherine Nelson, an NYU professor who was a pioneer in infant perception and memory. The mediated mind is a term coined by Dr Nelson and it refers to how cognitive development is mediated by the sociocultural context including language and social interaction. The book should be of interest to cognitive development researchers and readers interested in new perspectives on the relation between mind and culture development. The Architecture of the Mind Peter Carruthers, 2006. Developing Mind Daniel J.
