Root* Barbara Anderson, University of Kansas. School of Architecture and Urban Design, 1990 Nature's Laboratory Elizabeth Grennan Browning, 2022-11-15 The untold history of how Chicago served as an important site of innovation in environmental thought as America transitioned to modern industrial capitalism In Nature's Laboratory Elizabeth Grennan Browning argues that Chicago a city characterized by rapid growth severe labor unrest and its position as a gateway to the West offers the clearest lens for analyzing the history of the intellectual divide between countryside and city in the United States at the end of the nineteenth century By examining both the material and intellectual underpinnings of Gilded Age and Progressive Era environmental theories Browning shows how Chicago served as an urban laboratory where public intellectuals and industrial workers experimented with various strains of environmental thinking to resolve conflicts between capital and labor between citizens and their governments and between immigrants and long term residents Chicago she argues became the taproot of two intellectual strands of American environmentalism both emerging in the late nineteenth century first the conservation movement and the discipline of ecology and second the sociological and anthropological study of human societies as natural communities where human behavior was shaped in part by environmental conditions Integrating environmental labor and intellectual history Nature's Laboratory turns to the workplace to explore the surprising ways in which the natural environment and ideas about nature made their way into factories and offices places that appeared the most removed from the natural world within the modernizing city As industrialization urbanization and immigration transformed Chicago into a microcosm of the nation's transition to modern industrial capitalism environmental thought became a protean tool that everyone from anarchists and industrial workers to social scientists and business managers looked to in order to stake their claims within the democratic capitalist order Across political and class divides Chicagoans puzzled over what relationship the city should have with nature in order to advance as a modern nation Browning shows how historical understandings of the complex interconnections between human nature and the natural world both reinforced and empowered resistance against the stratification of social and political power in the city Architecture Henry-Russell Hitchcock, 1987-01-01 This book examines a period which is far more than a prelude to the age of steel and concrete The first half century culminated in the bold iron and glass of the Crystal Palace There follows the creation of the modern styles of the era based on traditions of the past and finally in the 20th century Art Nouveau and the modern architects in their generations Perret Wright Gropius Corbusier Mies van der Rohe and others in many parts of the world Source Book of American Architecture George Everard Kidder Smith, 1996 Scorched Earth is the first book to chronicle the effects of chemical warfare on the Vietnamese
