Ancestral Landscapes of the Pueblo World James Elliot Snead, 2008 The eastern Pueblo heartland located in the northern Rio Grande country of New Mexico has fascinated archaeologists since the 1870s In Ancestral Landscapes of the Pueblo World James Snead uses an exciting new approach landscape archaeology to understand ancestral Pueblo communities and the way the people consciously or unconsciously shaped the land around them Snead provides detailed insight into ancestral Puebloan cultures and societies using an approach he calls contextual experience employing deep mapping and community scale analysis This strategy goes far beyond the standard archaeological approaches using historical ethnography and contemporary Puebloan perspectives to better understand how past and present Pueblo worldviews and meanings are imbedded in the land Snead focuses on five communities in the Pueblo heartland Burnt Corn T obimpaenge Tsikwaiye Los Aguajes and Tsankawi using the results of intensive archaeological surveys to discuss the changes that occurred in these communities between AD 1250 and 1500 He examines the history of each area comparing and contrasting them via the themes of provision identity and movement before turning to questions regarding social political and economic organization This revolutionary study thus makes an important contribution to landscape archaeology and explains how the Precolumbian Pueblo landscape was formed

Cameron, 1993-08-15 From 1971 to 1974 the School of American Research conducted a major multidisciplinary program of excavation and research at Arroyo Hondo Pueblo one of the largest fourteenth century Rio Grande sites At its peak Arroyo Hondo contained about one thousand rooms This seventh volume in the series is focused on the walls roomblocks and architecture of public spaces at the site

The Protohistoric Pueblo World, A.D. 1275-1600 E. Charles Adams, Andrew I. Duff, 2016-04 In the centuries before the arrival of Europeans the Pueblo world underwent nearly continuous reorganization Populations moved from Chaco Canyon and the great centers of the Mesa

Verde region to areas along the Rio Grande the Little Colorado River and the Mogollon Rim where they began constructing larger and differently organized villages many with more than 500 rooms Villages also tended to occur in clusters that have been interpreted in a number of different ways This book describes and interprets this period of southwestern history immediately before and after initial European contact A D 1275 1600 a span of time during which Pueblo peoples and culture were dramatically transformed It summarizes one hundred years of research and archaeological data for the Pueblo IV period as it explores the nature of the organization of village clusters and what they meant in behavioral and political terms Twelve of the chapters individually examine the northern and eastern portions of the Southwest and the groups who settled there during the protohistoric period The authors develop histories for settlement clusters that offer insights into their unique development and the variety of ways that villages formed these clusters These analyses show the extent to which spatial clusters of large settlements may have formed regionally organized alliances and in some cases they reveal a connection between protohistoric villages and indigenous or migratory groups from the preceding period This volume is distinct from other recent syntheses of Pueblo IV research in that it treats the settlement cluster as the analytic unit By analyzing how members of clusters of villages interacted with one another it offers a clearer understanding of the value of this level of analysis and suggests possibilities for future research In addition to offering new insights on the Pueblo IV world the volume serves as a compendium of information on more than 400 known villages larger than 50 rooms It will be of lasting interest not only to archaeologists but also to geographers land managers and general readers interested in Pueblo culture

A Space Syntax Analysis of Arroyo Hondo Pueblo, New Mexico Jason S. Shapiro, 2005 Until recently archaeologists have rarely studied prehistoric architecture as if it were an artifact comparable to pottery or stone tools Following the premise that built space embodies social organization Jason Shapiro takes a fresh look at architectural data from Arroyo Hondo Pueblo a fourteenth century site in the northern Rio Grande Valley of present day New Mexico Using the theoretical assumptions and mathematical techniques of space syntax analysis he explores what changes in architecture reveal about people s social lives A significant shift toward greater residential privacy during the later period occurred in Arroyo Hondo as well as the contemporaneous pueblos of Tijeras and Puy and twentieth century Acoma Pueblo. This analysis demonstrates that transformations in the arrangement of space can illuminate social change even when they are not accompanied by changes in other kinds of artifacts or technologies. The Bandelier Archeological Survey Robert P. Powers, Janet Dale Orcutt, 1999. Food, Diet, and Population at Prehistoric Arroyo Hondo Pueblo, New Mexico Wilma Wetterstrom, 1986-10. This book, sixth in the Arroyo Hondo Archaeological Series, examines the uses of wild and domesticated plants at Arroyo Hondo Pueblo, a large fourteenth century ruin near Santa Fe, New Mexico. Ethnobotanist Wilma Wetterstrom describes the food plant remains found at the site and estimates the potential harvest of each food resource. Then in two closely argued chapters she demonstrates how years of drought would have caused food shortages for Arroyo Hondo's substantial population, resulting in migration as well as malnutrition and higher death rates among young children. In two additional reports, Vorsila L. Bohrer offers information from the analysis of pollen samples, and Richard W. Lang describes artifacts such as mats and baskets made from vegetal materials. Back cover. General Technical Report RM., 1996. The Faunal Remains from Arroyo Hondo Pueblo, New Mexico Richard W. Lang, Arthur H. Harris, 1984. This fifth volume presents the results of faunal analysis from the Arroyo Hondo excavations, covering the topics of prehistoric vegetation and climate, the importance of various animals in the diet, seasonal hunting patterns, methods of butchering, skinning, and cooking, the prehistoric hunting territory, the raising of domesticated dogs and turkeys, and trade in animals and animal products. The Past Climate of Arroyo Hondo, New Mexico, Reconstructed from Tree Rings Martin R. Rose, Jeffrey S. Dean, Robinson J. William, 1981. This landmark study uses archaeological tree ring chronologies in the first attempt to quantitatively reconstruct past climate variability. After a step by step explanation of the statistical methods, the authors reconstruct in inches the annual and spring precipitation of the Arroyo Hondo area for each year from AD 985 to 1970. This is the fourth volume in the series. Bioarchaeology of the Southwest Ann L. W. Stodder, Dawn M. Mulhern, 2025-07-01.
