The Dons of the Old Pueblo (Classic Reprint) Percival J. Cooney, 2016-08-27 Excerpt from The Dons of the Old Pueblo Be that as it may in the hearts of those who love the smiling vales and azure skies of the Golden State there will ever be a throb of kindly sympathy for the gentle chivalrous race that once lived a life of Arcadian simplicity amid these scenes now tumultuous with the myriad activities of modern civilization That we failed to understand them and they us was neither their fault nor ours but due to differences deep down in the natures of both races In the last war with Mexico and the acquisition of California much is there that the American of today would fain forget and much that we can remember now with pride And of the latter not the least is the gallant hopeless effort of a people struggling against overwhelming odds to hold the land of their fathers Soon very soon are we to come into much closer contact with the peoples of the Latin nations to the south Well indeed will it be for us and for them if we remember that we are not better not superior only different Our Viking vigor is not theirs neither are their virtues ours About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
