

DESIGN DICTIONARY

MODERN: This one is fairly broad, and it typically is used in reference to an aesthetic with clean and crisp lines, minimal clutter, and few accessories. Contemporary is often used interchangeably with modern, but the term "contemporary" actually refers to the dominant style of the current period (contemporary style shifts throughout time, whereas "modern" is a stable definition).

MINIMALIST: Like modern on steroids. It exaggerates the sleek and clean lines of modern design and values simplified furnishings. The color palette is usually muted and airy and accessories will be sparse and functional.

MID-CENTURY: This aesthetic often showcases raw materials like reclaimed wood, and exposed brick and beams. Spaces usually contain copious amounts of natural light, and usually rely on clean and curved clean lines. Furniture with functionality at its heart is usually the focal point in these spaces.

INDUSTRIAL: as you might have guessed, the industrial aesthetic is inspired by the warehouse, and often features open light fixtures, cement, high ceilings and primarily wood or metal materials. In an industrial styled home, there will be sparse furniture and ample space.

SCANDINAVIAN: this style of design is mirrored after the simplistic lifestyles led by Nordic folk. It is typically understated and usually incorporates some sort of outdoor influence, such as handcrafted wood workings. In the Scandinavian design world, their furniture is usually highly functional with minimal accessorizing and their color palette is usually based in a neutral palette.

TRADITIONAL: These homes usually showcase dark finished wood amongst ample accessories, various textures, and a diverse array of fabrics.

BOHEMIAN: This style category gets its name from its carelessness & free-spirited energy. These homes often feature vintage items, international influences, and lots of textiles & rugs. Bohemian style is also incredibly comfortable, often sporting ample pillow selections and comfy floor seating.

RUSTIC: this design concept is inspired by nature, often using unrefined textures and unfinished edges in its furniture. Accessories are usually somehow tied to the outdoors, and here, reclaimed wood is common.

COASTAL/THE HAMPTONS: This aesthetic is inspired by the beachy vibes that emanate from the coast of the state of New York. This palette is predominantly white with white washed wood paneling, flooring, or interior walls. Décor is typically nautically inclined, with navy and softer yellows and reds cropping up as accents colors.
