Sketches of Travel in Oregon and Idaho Charles Aubrey Angelo, 1865      Sketches of Travel in Oregon and Idaho
Charles Aubrey Angelo, 1988      Idaho's Place Adam M. Sowards, 2014-07-01 Idaho's Place is an anthology of the most current and original writing on Gem State history. From the state's indigenous roots and early environmental battles to recent political and social events, these essays provide much needed context for understanding Idaho's important role in the development of the American West. Through a creative approach that combines explorations of concepts such as politics, gender, and race with the oral histories of Idaho residents, the very people who lived and made state history, this unique collection sheds new light on the state's surprisingly contentious past. Readers, whether they are longtime residents or newcomers, tourists or seasonal dwellers, policy makers or historians, will be treated to a rich narrative in which the many threads of Idaho's history entwine to produce a complete tapestry of this beautiful and complex Western state.

Southwestern Idaho, Class I Cultural Resources Overview, 1982      The Chinook Indians Robert H. Ruby, John A. Brown, 1976 The Chinook Indians, who originally lived at the mouth of the Columbia River in present-day Oregon and Washington, were experienced traders long before the arrival of white men to that area. When Captain Robert Gray in the ship Columbia Rediviva, for which the river was named, entered the Columbia in 1792, he found the Chinooks in an important position in the trade system between inland Indians and those of the Northwest Coast. The system was based on a small seashell, the dentalium, as the principal medium of exchange. The Chinooks traded in such items as sea otter furs, elk skin armor which could withstand arrows, seagoing canoes hollowed from the trunks of giant trees, and slaves captured from other tribes. Chinook women held equal status with the men in the trade, and in fact, the women were preferred as traders by many later ships' captains who often feared and distrusted the Indian men. The Chinooks welcomed white men not only for the new trade goods they brought but also for the new outlets they provided. Chinook goods, which reached Vancouver Island and as far north as Alaska, were advantageous for the white men too. For British and American ships that carried sea otter furs from the Northwest Coast to China, often realized enormous profits. Although the first white men in the trade were seamen, land-based traders set up posts on the Columbia not long after American explorers Lewis and Clark blazed the trail from the United States to the Pacific Northwest in 1805. John Jacob Astor's men founded the first successful white trading post at Fort Astoria, the site of today's Astoria, Oregon. The North West Company and the Hudson's Bay Company soon followed into the territory. As more white men moved into the area, the Chinooks began to lose their favored position as middlemen in the trade. Alcohol, new diseases such as smallpox, influenza, and venereal disease, intertribal warfare, and the growing number of white settlers soon led to the near extinction of the Chinooks. By 1851, when the first treaty was made between them and the United States government, they were living in small, fragmented bands scattered throughout the territory. Today, the Chinook Indians are working to revive their tribal traditions and history and to establish a new tribal
