Brain Mechanisms and Spatial Vision D.J. Ingle, Marc Jeannerod, David Lee, 2012-12-06 This volume contains chapters derived from a NATO Advanced Study Institute held in June 1983 As the director of this ASI it was my hope that some of the electrophysiologists could express the potentialities of their work for perceptual theory and that some perceptionists could speculate on the underlying units of perception in a way that would engage the imagination of physiologists The reader will have to be the judge of whether this was achieved or whether such a psychophysiological interlingua is still overly idealistic It is clear that after the revolution precipitated by Hubel and Weisel in understanding of visual cortical neurons we still have only a foggy idea of the behavioral output of any particular species of cortical detector It was therefore particularly unfortunate that two persons who have made great strides in correlating interesting facets of cat cortical physiology with human psychophysics Max Cynader and Martin Regan of Dalhousie University were unable to attend this meeting Nevertheless a number of new and challenging ideas regarding both spatial perception and cortical mechanisms are represented in this volume and it is hoped that the reader will remember not only the individual demonstrations but the critical questions posed by the apposition of the two different collections of experimental facts David Ingle April 1984 VII
