Borgatta, Robert Freed Bales, 1955 Social Interaction Michael Argyle, 2017-09-29 This is the first book length work to reflect the recent trend in social psychology away from artificial laboratory test results It focuses directly on the detailed concrete elements of social behavior as they are observed in a real life setting Michael Argyle's approach here differs from that more generally taken in two respects First he discusses human interaction in terms of the basic elements of behavior bodily and facial movements gestures eye movements facial expression proximity and orientation the verbal and non verbal aspects of communication Second he has drawn on research in such varied areas as psychiatry anthropology linguistics ethology developmental and organizational psychology as well as on his own extensive experimental studies Particular emphasis is given to the biological roots of interaction and to its cultural setting Social Interaction demonstrates a strong awareness of the current theories of social psychology while restricting itself in exposition to the observable aspects of human interaction The result is a comprehensive and stimulating introduction to social interaction This is primarily a textbook for students of social psychology but it covers a field that is of central importance for all students of the social and biological sciences Socio-Cognitive Dynamics in Strategic Processes Maren S. D. Breuer, 2010 Process related considerations in strategy research and approaches to managerial cognition constitute two highly valuable yet still only limitedly integrated fields of interest in strategic management To fill this void the work starts from a cognitive perspective with the overall aim of examining the emergence of organisational strategies in strategic processes The central research object strategy is thereby conceptualized as shared strategic orientations among an organisation's key actors The existing gap between strategy process research and cognitive strategy research is closed on a conceptual level first by developing and specifying a socio cognitive perspective on strategic processes In recognition of the central importance of social interactions in this context the focus is then set on a specific core forum for strategic activities i.e. strategic decision making groups In this the nature and the role of social interactions for the developing strategy related knowledge structures is examined first conceptually leading to the development of a socio cognitive model on strategic decision making in groups followed by a qualitative empirical study in this kind of activity forum With its truly interdisciplinary nature the dissertation is of interest for strategy scholars as it enlarges the pool of knowledge in strategic management both content wise and also methodologically with the innovative empirical research approach adopted For practitioners contributions are made by detailing the different dimensions of strategic processes and hence sensitizing to important factors for careful overall process designs At the micro level concrete suggestions are derived for composing and instructing strategy teams in such a way as to allow for efficient interchanges during the discussions themselves as well as to enable the effectiveness of these efforts beyond the specific group context and for the performance of the wider organisation
