Abstract

Background: A multitude of studies have revealed that smoking is a learned behaviour during adolescence and efforts to reduce the incidence of smoking has been identified as long-term measures to curb the smoking menace. The objective of this study was to determine the prevalence as well as the intra and inter-personal factors associated with smoking among upper secondary school students in selected schools in Peninsular Malaysia.

Methods: A study was carried out in 2013, which involved a total of 40 secondary schools. They were randomly selected using a two-stage clustering sampling method. Subsequently, all upper secondary school students (aged 16 to 17 years) from each selected school were recruited into the study. Data was collected using a validated standardised questionnaire.

Results: This study revealed that the prevalence of smoking was 14.6% (95% CI: 13.3–15.9), and it was significantly higher among males compared to females (27.9% vs 2.4%, $p < 0.001$). Majority of smokers initiated smoking during their early adolescent years (60%) and almost half of the respondents bought cigarettes themselves from the store. Multivariable analysis revealed that the following factors increased the likelihood of being a current smoker: being male (aOR 21.51, 95% CI: 13.1–35); perceived poor academic achievement (aOR 3.42, 95% CI: 1.50–7.37) had one or both parents who smoked (aOR 1.80, 95% CI: 1.32–2.45; aOR 6.50, 95% CI: 1.65–25.65); and always feeling lonely (aOR 2.23, 95% CI: 1.21–4.43). In contrast, respondents with a higher religiosity score and protection score were less likely to smoke (aOR 0.51, 95% CI: 0.15–0.92; aOR 0.71, 95% CI: 0.55–0.92).

Conclusion: This study demonstrated that the prevalence of smoking among Malaysian adolescents of school-going age was high, despite implementation of several anti-smoking measures in Malaysia. More robust measures integrating the factors identified in this study are strongly recommended to curb the smoking epidemic among adolescents in Malaysia.

Alcohol and Drug Problems in Women Oriana Josseau Kalant, 2013-11-11

Over the last decade the world has experienced a growing interest in problems associated with the nonmedical use of drugs. This interest has corresponded to a real growth in the extent, diversity, and social impact of the use of alcohol and drugs in many societies. As a result, the amount of research and writing on the subject of drug problems has greatly increased and it has become very difficult for one individual to keep up with all the relevant literature. There is thus an acute need in the field for critical reviews that assess current developments and the present series is intended to fill this need. The series is not to be an annual review in the usual sense. The aim is not to cover all the work reported during the preceding year in relation to a fixed selection of topics. Rather, it is to present each year evaluative papers on topics in which enough recent progress has been made to alter the general scope in a particular area. Owing to the multidisciplinary nature of problems of drug use and dependence, the papers published in each volume will be drawn from several disciplines. However, some volumes may be devoted to one particular problem with individual reviews and papers examining various aspects of it. The composition of the editorial board and the international advisory board reflects these objectives. The editors are members of the senior scientific staff of the Addiction Research Foundation of Ontario.

Nicotine Addiction C. Tracy Orleans, John D. Slade, 1993
Despite persistent warnings from the medical profession about the health risks involved in cigarette smoking, millions of people continue to smoke cigarettes. With contributions from renowned experts, this groundbreaking work defines and explains nicotine addiction as a primary problem or disease instead of as a habit or risk factor for other diseases. A comprehensive clinical text on tobacco dependence, this book provides clinicians with essential information on how to diagnose and treat nicotine-addicted patients. It also offers the medical, epidemiological, and behavioral science backgrounds necessary for understanding the process and dynamics of tobacco dependence. Following the traditional format of medical texts, the book first covers etiology, pathogenesis, and complications; then diagnosis and treatment; and finally public health and prevention. Part One presents an overview of the biological, psychological, and social factors that contribute to nicotine dependence, including such topics as a description of nicotine delivery systems, psychopharmacology, economics, natural history, and epidemiology. Mortality, morbidity, and environmental tobacco smoke exposure are covered in Part Two. The second part offers practical guidelines and tools for treating nicotine dependence and describes a stepped care treatment model with brief interventions that can be easily integrated into routine medical practice. This section also covers the role of psychopharmacologic and formal treatment programs, the treatment of smokeless tobacco addiction, and treating nicotine dependence in pregnant women and in people with medical illnesses.

chemical dependencies or psychiatric disorders The last section focuses on worksite and community intervention programs and summarizes the research on smoking patterns and history in women Blacks Hispanics youth and older adults discussing how intervention and prevention programs could be made more effective in these groups Written by the nation's leading tobacco control researchers and clinicians this important work contains new and critical information not previously available
