Saltwater Joys Dianna Brown,2018-05-04 Saltwater Joys is set in Ireland s Eye a ghost town located on the edge of Newfoundland and Labrador one of hundreds of fishing outports forced to resettle during the province s confederation with Canada The grave consequences of resettlement for the people and culture of Newfoundland and Labrador are illuminated in this intimate tale of one family's experience across two generations. In the fall of 1965 John Lee, a young fisherman, makes a tragic decision that changes the course of his life, pushing him to a self-imposed exile and to the brink of insanity. Twenty years later John must face the demons of his past when a young woman ventures to the rocky shores of Newfoundland in search of her roots. This work of literary fiction explores themes of love, suffering, survival, and redemption through two parallel love stories: love for a woman and love for a province. The reader will come to know Newfoundland and Labrador and all it has to offer in its vast natural beauty, poetic language, close-knit communities, bountiful hospitality, ghost stories, folklore, and colourful culture. Saltwater Joys is a mournful and haunting story that will surely captivate and call you home.

Sound-Shadows of the New World Ved Mehta, 2020-12-03. Book 5 in Ved Mehta's Continents of Exile series. Nearly 50 years in the making, Continents of Exile is one of the great works of twentieth-century autobiography, the epic chronicle of an Indian family in the twentieth century. From 1930s India to 1950s Oxford and literary New York in the 1960s and 80s, this is the story of the post-colonial twentieth century as uniquely experienced and vividly recounted by Ved Mehta. In 1949, fifteen-year-old Ved Mehta, blind since the age of four, left his native India and travelled alone to a school for the blind in Arkansas, USA. For the next three years he studied with over a hundred blind or partially sighted children at the school. Here he would learn how to deal with Western teachers, date girls, and begin to perceive objects by means of sound shadows. Sound Shadows of the New World brilliantly traces the emigrant experience amid the difficult transition from adolescence into adulthood.

Detroit And The "Good War" Dominic J. Capeci Jr., 2014-10-17. Edward J. Jeffries Jr. was elected mayor of Detroit in 1937 and for a decade led the city through a period of race riots, union turmoil, and unprecedented growth. Jeffries's circle of friends was made up primarily of newspaper reporters who shared his interests and lifestyle. Devoted to family, they nevertheless worked long hours, smoked heavily, drank moderately, and gambled often in their running card games of gin and poker. After Pearl Harbor, Jeffries watched his closest friends, most twelve to fourteen years his junior, enlist in the armed forces. Voracious letter writers, over the next four years they shared with one another their innermost hopes and fears. They told stories about Gen. George S. Patton, the surrender of Japan, of commanding African American soldiers during the Normandy invasion, and the battles on the home front in the heart of Detroit, the Arsenal of Democracy. These letters present a candid portrait of the intellectual and political leadership of Detroit and America. These men were confident in their values, aware of their responsibilities, and logical in their actions as they helped forge the weapons that turned back the fascist threat to democracy. Their letters also reveal a level and kind of male camaraderie seemingly lost in the depersonalized technocratic society of the postwar era. As such, this work provides a more complete understanding of how Americans reacted to and were changed by the Good War.
