Fiensy, 2021-01-05 Have you ever wondered what it was like to live in the past Did they experience reality in a much different way than we do now with our media our fast travel our fast food and our leisure Do you especially think about what it might have been like to have lived in Bible times What would your childhood have been like How would you have chosen a marriage partner How would you probably have made a living What sort of house would you have lived in What diseases would have threatened your daily existence How long would you have lived How would you have practiced your religion These are a few of the intriguing questions answered by this study The book takes you on a journey into the past to view daily life through the lenses of not only texts but archaeological finds The information from the past is also filtered through ethnographic studies of more contemporaneous yet traditional societies in the Middle East The result is a presentation that may surprise you even shock you at times but always will interest you Placing Animals in the Neolithic Arkadiusz Marciniak, 2018-10-24 This book presents a new perspective on the social milieu of the Early and Middle Neolithic in Central Europe as viewed through relations between humans and animals food acquisition and consumption as well as refuse disposal practices Based on animal bone assemblages from a wide range of sites from a period of over 2 000 years originating in both the North European Plain lowlands and the loess uplands the evidence explored in the book represents the Linear Band Pottery Culture LBK the Lengyel Culture and the Funnel Beaker Culture TRB allowing us to follow the dynamic development of early farmers from their emergence in the area north of the Carpathians up to their consolidation and stabilization in this new territory People with Animals Lee

Broderick, 2016-03-01 People with Animals emphasizes the interdependence of people and animals in society and contributors examine the variety of forms and time depth that these relations can take The types of relationship studied include the importance of manure to farming societies dogs as livestock guardians seasonality in pastoralist societies butchery symbolism and food Examples are drawn from the Pleistocene to the present day and from the Altai Mountains Ethiopia Iraq Italy Mongolia and North America The 11 papers work from the basis that animals are an integral part of society and that past society is the object of most archaeological inquiry Discussion papers explore this topic and use the case studies presented in other contributions to suggest the importance of ethnozoarchaeology not just to archaeology but also to anthrozoology A further contribution to archaeological theory is made by an argument for the validity of ethnozoarchaeology derived models to Neanderthals The book makes a compelling case for the importance of human animal relations in the archaeological record and demonstrates why the information contained in this record is of significance to specialists in other disciplines Animals and Sacred Bodies in Early Medieval Ireland John Soderberg,2022-01-04

Clonmacnoise was among the busiest most economically complex and intensely sacred places in early medieval Ireland In Animals and Sacred Bodies in Early Medieval Ireland Religion and Urbanism at Clonmacnoise John Soderberg argues that animals are the key to understanding Clonmacnoise s development as a thriving settlement and a sacred space At this sanctuary city on the River Shannon animal bodies were an essential source of food and raw materials They were also depicted extensively on religious objects Drawing from new theories about the intersections between religion and economics John Soderberg explores how transformations emerging from animal encounters made Clonmacnoise a sacred settlement and created the sacred bodies of early medieval Ireland Humans, Animals, and the Craft of Slaughter in

Archaeo-Historic Societies Krish Seetah,2018-10-25 In this book Krish Seetah uses butchery as a point of departure for exploring the changing historical relationships between animal utility symbolism and meat consumption Seetah brings together several bodies of literature on meat cut marks craftspeople and the role of craft in production that have heretofore been considered in isolation from one another Focusing on the activity inherent in butcher he describes the history of knowledge that typifies the craft He also provides anthropological and archaeological case studies which showcase examples of butchery practices in varied contexts that are seldom identified with zooarchaeological research Situating the relationship between practice practitioner material and commodity this imaginative study offers new insights into food production consumption and the craft of cuisine A Companion to the Archaeology of Religion in the Ancient World Rubina

Raja,Jörg Rüpke,2020-01-09 A Companion to the Archaeology of Religion in the Ancient World presents a comprehensive overview of a wide range of topics relating to the practices expressions and interactions of religion in antiquity primarily in the Greco Roman world Features readings that focus on religious experience and expression in the ancient world rather than solely on religious belief Places a strong emphasis on domestic and individual religious practice Represents the first time that the concept of lived religion is applied to the ancient history of religion and archaeology of religion Includes cutting edge data taken from top contemporary researchers and theorists in the field Examines a large variety of themes and religious traditions across a wide geographical area and chronological span Written to appeal equally to archaeologists and historians of religion Live Stock and Dead Things Hannah Chazin,2024-12-20 Reconceptualizes human animal relationships and their political significance in ancient and modern societies In Live Stock and Dead Things Hannah Chazin combines zooarchaeology and anthropology to challenge familiar narratives about the role of nonhuman animals in the rise of modern societies Conventional views of this process tend to see a mostly linear development from hunter gatherer societies to horticultural and pastoral ones to large scale agricultural ones and then industrial ones Along the way traditional accounts argue that owning livestock as property along with land and other valuable commodities introduced social inequality and stratification Against this Chazin raises a provocative question What if domestication wasn't the origin of instrumentalizing nonhuman animals after all Chazin argues that these conventional narratives are inherited from conjectural histories and ignore the archaeological data In her view the category of domestication flattens the more complex dimensions of humans relationship to herd animals In the book's first half Chazin offers a new understanding of the political possibilities of pastoralism one that recognizes the powerful role herd animals have played in shaping human notions of power and authority In the second half she takes readers into her archaeological fieldwork in the South Caucasus which sheds further light on herd animals transformative effect on the economy social life and ritual Appealing to anthropologists and archaeologists alike this daring book offers a reconceptualization of human animal relationships and their political significance Desert animals in the eastern Sahara : status, economic significance, and cultural reflection in antiquity Heiko Riemer,Nadja Pöllath,Michael Herb,Frank Förster,2009-01-01
