The Disciplining Of Education New Languages Of Power And Resistance:

The Disciplining of Education Jerome Satterthwaite, Elizabeth Atkinson, Wendy Martin, 2004 This is the second in the Trentham series on Discourse Power and Resistance It explores and critiques government control over educational practice and research in the US and the UK and examines the impact of this control on teachers and learners Chapters illustrate the undermining of professional autonomy the narrowing effect of learning outcomes and the impact of punitive inspection regimes Other chapters review issues arising from widening participation policies such as the effect of therapeutic education on the self esteem of adult learners and how the policing and control of student experience undermines the trust between tutor and students The book offers a timely reminder to those engaged in shaping delivering or experiencing the effects of current educational policy that it is all too easy to be swept away by contemporary rhetoric without considering its impact on practitioners researchers and learners This book will be wholly relevant especially for those working with adult learners It will also be of value to students in education policy studies and professional training Book jacket

Discourses of Education in the Age of New Imperialism Jerome Satterthwaite, Elizabeth Atkinson, 2005 This fourth volume in the Discourse Power Resistance series takes the theme into new territory setting educational thinking and practice firmly in its global political context Drawing on schools of thought as diverse as Marxism and eco feminist theology the contributors to Part 1 Global Imperialism and Terror The Theory and Practice of Othering led by Peter McLaren examine the possibilities for critical thinking and transformative practice in the aftermath of 9 11 and the new age of cultural and political imperialism In Part 2 Praxis Thinking and Doing contributors draw on a range of critical perspectives to examine both the theory and practice of education taking the reader from the self to the system and back again via dynamic systems theory flow theory and a multiplicity of diverse and often conflicting practices of subversion The book closes with two radical departures from the norm a seriously playful transgression into the fields of pop art and film and a searing poetic lament on the current state of educational policy and practice As educators we are all in William Pinar s words behind enemy lines in a field which despite our continued bids for autonomy is increasingly hijacked by globalizing political forces This book offers modes of resistance which are startling unsettling and challenging It will be of deep interest to students tutors and researchers in education policy studies and related fields and to those who are involved in training or becoming the educators of the future The contributors are Peter McLaren William Pinar Mike Cole Lisa Isherwood Elizabeth Atkinson Tamsin Haggis Sue Clegg Gill Boag Munroe Ros Ollin Victoria

Consuming Higher Education Joanna Williams, 2013-01-17 Reflects on the link between constructing students as consumers and the purpose of higher education and the implications for student identity and learning

Discipline and Learn Megan Watkins, 2012-03-24 Discipline and Learn Bodies Pedagogy and Writing explores how discipline is typically construed as a form of subjection in contemporary educational thought and in critical and cultural theory more broadly It provides a critique of this emphasis on the repressive aspects of discipline highlighting its enabling potential and role in the development of dispositions to learning The book engages with the work of a range of theorists Foucault Bourdieu Merleau Ponty Mauss and Spinoza and considers their usefulness in theorizing embodiment and learning in the teaching of writing in the early years of school Emphasis however is placed on the work of Bourdieu and his notion of habitus melding theory and practice in an ethnography of contemporary classrooms This text is invaluable reading for students and academics across the social sciences and humanities interested in questions of embodiment affect and their relation to learning This is the most thought provoking book to be published on pedagogy in a long long time Conceptually elegant and empirically rich it undercuts conventional wisdom and potentially rearranges how we think about teaching learning and writing It argues that students bodies not just their minds matter in learning explaining how in practice the desire to learn is a mindful bodily disposition And it shows how through an enabling form of discipline teachers can produce a scholarly habitus in all students including the educationally disadvantaged and defiant Jane Kenway Professor of Education Monash University Discipline and Learn Bodies Pedagogy and

Writing an excellent book which makes an important contribution to our understanding of both pedagogy and the body and which is sure to spark debate in both fields It is careful and judicious in its approach but still manages to be provocative and original Nick Crossley Professor of Sociology University of Manchester International Perspectives on Teaching Excellence in Higher Education Alan Skelton, 2013-05-13 There has been an explosion of interest in teaching excellence in higher education Once labelled the poor relation of the research teaching divide teaching is now firmly on the policy agenda pressure on institutions to improve the quality of teaching has never been greater and significant funding seeks to promote teaching excellence in higher education institutions This book constitutes the first serious scrutiny of how and why it should be achieved International perspectives from educational researchers award winning teachers practitioners and educational developers consider key topics including policy initiatives research led teaching teaching excellence and scholarship the significance of academic disciplines research into teaching excellence rewarding through promotion inclusive learning and ICT Teaching Excellence in Higher Education provides a guide for all those supporting promoting and trying to achieve teaching excellence in higher education and sets the scene for teaching excellence as a field for serious investigation and critical enquiry
