I. Ahmed, 2012-12-06 It is generally recognized today that the United States has a need to contribute to the improvement of health throughout the world The need stems from the interrelationships that exist between the health of Americans and the health status of the rest of the people on Spaceship Earth Disease does not respect national boundaries and the frequency of travel and trade between countries increases each year It further relates to the opportunities found in international settings to help solve health problems more effectively and efficiently This includes the unique human resources that are found throughout the world as well as certain natural ecological conditions that cannot be duplicated in the United States The United States also has a responsibility to contribute to improved health status Our tradition of humanitarianism alone supports such a responsibility but our comparative wealth of technical and financial resources dictates a requirement to participate Modern political realities define relationships between developed and developing countries that will not allow us to isolate ourselves from the compelling health needs of a majority of the world's population Changing National-subnational Relations in Health, 1978 Doing Better and Feeling Worse John H. Knowles, 1977 The articles deal with a wide range of problems and questions from the soaring costs of medical care medical manpower and training biomedical research ethics delivery systems technology and insurance to the very meaning of health Changing National-subnational Relations in Health, Opportunity and Constraints, 1978 Comparative Health Systems: Differentiation and Convergence Mark George Field, 1976 A New International Health Order Charles O.
