Grinsell,2014-10-24 First published in 1936 and rewritten in 1953 this book embodies the results of the author s extensive researches and fieldwork Part one considers types of barrows and dating their building and the cult of the dead from Palaeolithic to Saxon times A chapter is dedicated to maps and another to fieldwork in particular while the final bit of the introductory material discussed barrow digging from the time of the Romans to the twentieth century Part two is the regional surveys from Cornwall to Kent and northwards to the Scottish border    Cranborne Chase Roger Lane,2015-06-15 Cranborne Chase is a photographic journey through one of the South s most historic and atmospheric landscapes the construction of its various elements were episodic and intermittent spread over 300 400 hundred years and did not entail lasting settlement As well as stone axe heads exchanged from remote sources more abundant grinding equipment and pottery from adjacent regions may point to the areas from which people came to the hill If so it had important links with territories to the west north west and south in other words with land off the Wessex Chalk at the edge of which the complex lies Within the smaller compass of the immediate area of the hill including Cranborne Chase field walking survey suggests that the hill was the main focus of earlier Neolithic activity A complementary relationship with the Chase is indicated by a fairly abrupt diminution of activity on the hill in the late fourth millennium when the massive Dorset cursus and several smaller monuments were built in the Chase Renewed activity on the hill in the late third millennium and early second millennium was a prelude to occupation on and around the hill in the second millennium in the mid to late second millennium which was followed by the construction of a hillfort on the northern spur from the early first millennium Late Iron Age and Romano British activity may reflect the proximity of Hod Hill A small pagan Saxon cemetery may relate to settlement in the Iwerne valley which it overlooks      Archaeologia Cambrensis ,1915
