Perspectives on the Archaeology of Pipes, Tobacco and other Smoke Plants in the Ancient Americas Elizabeth Anne Bollwerk, Shannon Tushingham, 2015-12-20 This volume presents the most recent archaeological historical and ethnographic research that challenges simplistic perceptions of Native smoking and explores a wide variety of questions regarding smoking plants and pipe forms from throughout North America and parts of South America By broadening research questions utilizing new analytical methods and applying interdisciplinary interpretative frameworks this volume offers new insights into a diverse array of perspectives on smoke plants and pipes Structure and Regional Diversity in the Meadowood Interaction Sphere Karine Taché, 2011-01-01 This monograph offers the first major synthesis of the Meadowood phenomenon one of the earliest and largest interaction spheres in northeastern North America This volume breathes new life into our understanding of the Early Woodland phenomenon 3000 2400 BP The Organization of Complexity Brian Walter Hoffman, 2002 A fundamental goal in archaeology is explaining how and why human societies evolved from simple small scale groups into our complex modern world Crucial to this goal are studies focused on transegalitarian societies those complex hunter gatherer and simple farming communities that were neither strictly egalitarian nor highly stratified in their social relations Many researchers believe the archaeological remains of these societies hold the keys to understanding the processes that led to the emergence of social inequality and increased cultural complexity This dissertation contributes to the study of transegalitarian socio political processes by investigating the relationships between economy status competition and corporate groups at Agayadan Village an eastern Aleut settlement abandoned during the 18th century AD The eastern Aleuts at the time of contact were politically and socially complex maritime foragers with ascribed social classes and ranked lineages whose members occupied large multifamily dwellings Agayadan located on Unimak Island Alaska contains the remains of at least 20 of these communal houses My research addresses two issues The first issue concerns understanding the organization of Agayadan s multifamily households particularly the relationship between the individual families and the larger corporate group My investigative strategy utilized

large block excavations with high definition methods The spatial distributions of features artifacts and soil chemistry signatures demonstrate a basic division between communal space and family compartments The centrally located communal space was dominated by cooking facilities hearths and roasting pits shared by all families Each nuclear family however maintained their own storage facilities and workspace associated with a segmented sleeping area along the house walls The workshops contained manufacturing debris and tools indicating activities like sewing stone tool production and woodworking were undertaken by each family The similarities in the workshop assemblages suggest there was minimal economic specialization among household members These findings contradict the argument that multifamily households form where large labor forces were required The Agayadan villagers did not move into larger households strictly for reasons of economic efficiency given the evidence for economic independence among household members social and political motivations like elite competition for followers warfare related concerns and the need to symbolize and strengthen social bonds in eastern Aleut villages likely factored into their decision to live in multifamily houses The second dissertation issue centers on the relationships between house lineage size and economic activities wealth and status These relationships are explored through the comparative analyses of assemblages recovered from small medium and large houses The Agayadan villagers organized their houses in a similar fashion regardless of size Each excavated house contained the same aggregate of facilities workshops and family compartments The largest house however had the highest frequency of personal adornment objects which is consistent with the ethnohistoric observation that a household's status was based on its size The occupants of the largest house were also more involved in accumulating surpluses as indicated by the abundance of salmon remains and storage facilities Finally the larger household emphasized the production of prestige goods from locally available materials like ivory limestone and animal skins presumably for exchange outside the village The amber beads slate knives obsidian bifaces and other exotic goods received in return were widely distributed within the community and not hoarded by Agayadan's high status household These behaviors are consistent with a social banker strategy where elite lineages compete for status by working harder P3 producing an excess of foods and materials which they then use in alliance building feasting and celebrations in a social display of their power and prestige Agayadan's large household maintained their power and status by controlling prestige goods production and redistributing valuable exotics not by controlling subsistence resources and exploiting low status households The Agayadan archaeological record is an outstanding example of transegalitarian elites converting their labor and material wealth into social capital and political power In a real sense Agayadan's elite manufactured their prestige Leaves i iii
