Japanese Popular Prints Rebecca Salter, 2006-06-30 In the West Japanese woodblock printing tends to be associated with the ukiyo e tradition and the familiar portrayals of kabuki actors or courtesan beauties These well known images were produced by a publisher and artist using the extraordinary skills of carvers and printers whose identities are rarely known The same craftsmen also produced woodblock printed objects for use in everyday life such as decorative paper chiyogami votive slips senjafuda playing cards karuta and board games sugoroku As the market changed in the late nineteenth century the craftsmen increasingly turned to the production of these low value essentially ephemeral objects Although the prices were kept low many were imbued with the same glorious visual sophistication that had attracted Westerners to ukiyo e Approaching the subject as an artist rather than a print scholar Rebecca Salter focuses on the craftsmen and the complex visual culture within which they worked Through information gained from interviews with some of the remaining practitioners and analysis of the objects themselves she builds up a picture of the quiet role woodblock played in the lives of the Japanese as they moved from the isolation of the Edo period to embrace modernization in the early twentieth century This book is a fascinating exploration of this area of cultural history and the numerous color illustrations encourage a playful investigation of the many threads of Japan s visual culture Rebecca Salter is a well known British printmaker She lived in Japan for six years and is an acknowledged authority on Japanese woodblock printing She is the author of Japanese Woodblock Printing

Playing with Form Alexander Alland, 1983 The development of the child's ability to draw is an inherently fascinating and complex subject. Many theories have been proposed to explain this development, but until now, no one has undertaken a cross-cultural, controlled study of children in the act of drawing. Playing with Form is the first empirical study of children drawing in diverse cultures. Alexander Alland Jr. spent eight months observing and filming children in six cultures: Japan, Bali, Taiwan, Ponape, France, and the U.S. as they drew. Attempting to determine the accuracy of current generalizations about the development of drawing skills, as well as to understand the step-by-step process of drawing, Alland amassed 240 drawings, 100 of which are reproduced here by children ranging from two to eight years old. The author uses this wealth of primary material to dispute much current thinking about children's drawing, particular theories about specific universal stages of development. While he does suggest some general rules which underlie the process of drawing, Alland argues that cultural differences reflect rules which are specific to the culture in which children play with form. An invaluable first step toward understanding the exact role culture plays in the development of style in children's drawing, Playing with Form will be of fundamental interest to anthropologists, developmental psychologists, art historians, and elementary school teachers. back cover
