Speed and Politics Paul Virilio, 1986 With this book Paul Virilio inaugurated the new science whose object of study is the dromocratic revolution The Western Humanities Review, 1993 Dark Skies Daniel Deudney, 2020-03-02 Dark Skies provides the first comprehensive and balanced assessment of the space enterprise past present and future It demolishes widely held optimistic assumptions about the desirability of many major space activities actual and prospective Most consequentially the hiding in plain sight use of outer space as a corridor for long range bombardment has increased the probability of catastrophic nuclear war Contrary to the widespread claim that sustainable colonies on other celestial bodies are necessary for human survival from large scale disasters on Earth Dark Skies shows that colonization itself poses many severe threats and should be avoided Instead an Earth oriented space program should be pursued The Aesthetics of Disappearance, new edition Paul Virilio, 2009-04-10 Virilio introduces his understanding of picnolepsy the epileptic state of consciousness produced by speed Virilio himself referred to his 1980 work The Aesthetics of Disappearance as a juncture in his thinking one at which he brought his focus onto the logistics of perception a logistics he would soon come to refer to as the vision machine If Speed and Politics established Virilio as the inaugural and still consummate theorist of dromology the theory of speed and the society it defines The Aesthetics of Disappearance introduced his understanding of picnolepsy the epileptic state of consciousness produced by speed or rather the consciousness invented by the subject through its very absence the gaps glitches and speed bumps lacing through and defining it Speed and Politics defined the society of speed The Aesthetics of Disappearance defines what it feels like to live in the society of speed I always write with images Virilio has claimed and this statement is nowhere better illustrated than with The Aesthetics of Disappearance Moving from the movie theater to the freeway and from Craig Breedlove's attainment of terrifying speed in a rocket power car to the immobility of Howard Hughes in his dark room atop the Desert Inn Virilio himself jump cuts from such disparate reference points as Fred Astaire Franz Liszt and Adolf Loos to Dostoyevsky Paul Morand and Aldous Huxley In its extension of the aesthetics of disappearance to war film and politics this book paved the way to Virilio's follow up the celebrated study War and Cinema This edition features a new introduction by Jonathan Crary one of the leading theorists of modern visual culture Foreign Agents series Distributed for Semiotext e Crepuscular Dawn Paul Virilio, Sylvere Lotringer, 2002-11-08 The genetic bomb marks a turn in the history of humanity The accident is a new form of warfare It is replacing revolution and war Sarajevo triggered the First World War New York is what Sarajevo was September 11th opened Pandora's box The first war of globalization will be the global accident the total accident including the accident of science And it is on the way In 1968 Virilio abandoned his work in oblique architecture believing that time had replaced space as the most important point of reflection because of the dominance of speed We were basically on the verge of converting space time into space speed Speed facilitates the decoding of the human genome and the possibility of another humanity a humanity which is no longer extra territorial but extra human Crespuscular Dawn expands Virilio's vision of the implosion of physical time and space onto the micro level of bioengineering and biotechnology In this cat and mouse dialogue between Sylvère Lotringer and Paul Virilio Lotringer pushes Virilio to uncover the historical foundations of his biotech theories Citing various medical experiments conducted during World War II Lotringer asks whether biotechnology isn't the heir to eugenics and the science for racial improvement that the Nazis enthusiastically embraced Will the endocolonization of the body come to replace the colonization of one's own population by the military Both biographical and thematic the book explores the development of Virilio's investigation of space architecture urbanism and time speed and simultaneity that would ultimately lay the foundation for his theories on biotechnology and his startling declaration that after the colonization of space begins the colonization of the body
