Earth's land surface is arid or alpine and therefore unsuitable for agricultural cultivation. Collectively these lands are known as rangelands and in their natural state they constitute a habitat for grazing animals both domestic and wild. Despite their low productivity, rangelands have been used for thousands of years as a source of food and fibre but other uses such as mining, tourism, recreation and conservation are exerting increasing demands. The result is often conflict between land users and degradation of the resource.
