Switching The Odds:

Crossing the Aisle Antoine Yoshinaka, 2015-11-24 Switching parties is arguably the most important decision a politician will ever make This book is the first ever systematic study of the causes and consequences of legislative party switching in the United States The author argues that re election alone does not explain party switching He proposes an ambition based theory that accounts for multiple goals including higher office aspirations and the desire for influence in the legislature with a focus on the electoral costs and the institutional benefits of the decision The book combines the statistical analysis of electoral data and legislative careers in the US Congress and state legislatures with elite interviews of party switchers non switchers and a party leader The case study of a party switcher s decision in real time documents the complexity of the decision in a politician s own words prior to and following the switch The book raises important questions regarding the meaning of a party label

Internationalisation and Mode Switching Uwe Sachse, 2011-11-06 Managing an international operation is seen by many as one of the most challenging activities in an enterprise Uwe Sachse offers substantial answers to the question of how companies behave after they have entered a particular foreign market The results of the empirical study show that the mode switch is an important option for improving performance in foreign markets Uwe Sachse shows that over the duration of foreign business activity companies pursue characteristic internationalisation pathways through their choice of mode

Changing Faith Darren E. Sherkat, 2014-08-22 More than anywhere else in the Western world religious attachments in America are quite flexible with over 40 percent of U S citizens shifting their religious identification at least once in their lives In Changing Faith Darren E Sherkat draws on empirical data from large scale national studies to provide a comprehensive portrait of religious change and its consequences in the United States With analysis spanning across generations and ethnic groups the volume traces the evolution of the experience of Protestantism and Catholicism in the United States the dramatic growth of Hinduism Buddhism and Islam and the rise of non identification now the second most common religious affiliation in the country Drawing on that wealth of data it details the impact of religious commitments on broad arenas of American social life including family and sexuality economic well being political commitments and social values Exploring religious change among those of European heritage as well as of Eastern and Western European immigrants African Americans Asians Latin Americans and Native Americans Changing Faith not only provides a comprehensive and ethnically inclusive demographic overview of the juncture between religion and ethnicity within both the private and public sphere but also brings empirical analysis back to the sociology of religion

Journal of the National Cancer Institute, 2011-07

Doing Engineering Joyce Tang, 1999 The first to systematically compare Caucasians African Americans and Asian Americans in engineering this study of the career attainment and mobility of engineers in the United States tells how these three groups fare in the American engineering labor market and what they can look forward to in the future The numbers of black and Asian engineers recently have grown at a much faster rate than the number of Caucasian engineers With a projected steady increase in engineering jobs and demographic shifts this trend should continue Yet recent writings on the engineering profession have said little about career mobility beyond graduation This book identifies and explores key issues determining whether minorities in the US will attain occupational equality with their Caucasian counterparts Highlighting implications for theory policy making and the future of the profession Doing Engineering offers important insights into labor race and ethnicity that will be of interest to anyone studying stratification in a wide range of professional occupations The Changing German Voter Rüdiger Schmitt-Beck, Sigrid Roßteutscher, Harald Schoen, Bernhard Weßels, Christof Wolf, 2022 The Changing German Voter examines the massive changes that German voters behavior underwent during the second decade of the 21st century Students' school transition patterns between 8th and 10th grades, based on NELS:88, Cognitive Perspectives on Bilingualism Monika Reif, Justyna A. Robinson, 2016-04-25 Only 15 years ago bilingualism was somewhat outside the main debates in cognitive linguistics Cognitive linguistics had to a large extent taken for granted the fact that language is embodied in our experience However not much attention was given to questions of whether any changes to our language repertoire alter the way we perceive the world around us A growing body of recent research suggests that one cannot understand the cognitive foundations of language without looking at bi and multilingual speakers In this vein the present book aims to contribute to the existing debate of the relationship between language culture and cognition by assessing differences and similarities between monolingual and bilingual language acquisition and use In particular it investigates the effect of conceptual semantic and pragmatic properties of constructions on code choice and code switching as well as the impact of bilingual and bicultural education on speakers cognitive development This collective volume systematises reviews and promotes a range of theoretical perspectives and research techniques that currently inform work across the disciplines of bilingualism and code switching Students' School Transition Patterns Between 8th and 10th Grades, Based on NELS:88 David E Myers, 1995 Computational Models of Argument P. Baroni, T.F. Gordon, T. Scheffler, 2016-09-02 Research into computational models of argument is a rich interdisciplinary field involving the study of natural artificial and theoretical argumentation and requiring openness to interactions with a variety of disciplines ranging from philosophy and cognitive science to formal logic and graph theory The ultimate aim is to support the development of computer based systems able to engage in argumentation related activities either with human users or among themselves This book presents the proceedings of the sixth biennial International Conference on Computational Models of Argument COMMA 2016 held in Potsdam Germany on 12-16 September The aim of the COMMA conferences is to bring together researchers interested in computational models of argument and the representation of argumentation structures in natural language texts with special attention to contributions concerning emerging trends and the development of new connections with other areas The book contains the 25 full papers 17 short papers and 10 demonstration abstracts presented at the conference together with 3 invited talks Subjects covered include abstract bipolar and structured argumentation quantitative approaches and their connections with formalisms like Bayesian networks and fuzzy logic multi agent scenarios algorithms and solvers and mining arguments in text dialogue and social media The book provides an overview of current research and developments in the field of computational models of argument and will be essential reading for all those with an interest in the field
