Composition, Chromaticism and the Developmental Process Henry Burnett, 2017-07-05 Musicology having been transmitted as a compilation of disparate events and disciplines has long necessitated a magic bullet a unified field theory so to speak that can interpret the steady metamorphosis of Western art music from late medieval modality to twentieth century atonality within a single theoretical construct Without that magic bullet discussions of this kind are increasingly complicated and to make matters worse the validity of any transformational models and ideas of the natural evolution of styles is questioned and even frowned upon today as epitomizing a grotesque teleological bigotry Going against current thinking Henry Burnett and Roy Nitzberg claim that the teleological approach to observing stylistic change is still valid when considered from the purely compositional perspective The authors challenge the traditional understanding of development and advance a new theory of eleven pitch tonality as it relates to the corpus of Western composition The book plots the evolution of tonality and its bearing on style and the compositional process itself The theory is not based on the diatonic

aspect of the various tonal systems exploited by composers rather the theory is chromatically based the chromatically inflected octave being the source not only of a highly ingenious developmental dialectic but also encompassing the moment to moment progression of the musical narrative itself Even the most profound teachings of Schenker and the often startlingly original and worthwhile speculations of Riemann Tovey Dahlhaus and others still provide no theory of development and so are ultimately unable to unite the various tendrils of the compositional organism into a unified whole Burnett and Nitzberg move beyond existing theory and analysis to base their theory from the standpoint of chromatic pitch fields These fields are the specific chromatic pitch choices that a composer uses to inform and design a complete composition utilizing Graphic Music Analysis Eric Wen,2019-02-14 Graphic Music Analysis presents Schenkerian analysis in a practical and engaging manner that will resonate with musicology theory and composition students as well as performing musicians With over 650 musical examples Eric Wen guides students through the step by step process of creating graphic representations of music and reveals how Schenkerian ideas evolve out of analytical issues in the works encountered Rather than promoting an analytic method for its own sake Wen derives structural techniques from their particular musical situations to help students engage directly with the music The textbook has an online companion website textbooks rowman com wen featuring Full scores and recordings of the works discussed in the book Downloadable workbook of additional pieces to analyze Detailed commentary on Schenker's own analysis of J S Bach's Prelude in C from Book 1 of The Well Tempered Clavier An instructor's manual with a step by step guide to analyzing the supplementary workbook examples is also available Please email textbooks rowman com for more information
