Syllables In Tashlhiyt Berber And In Moroccan Arabic:

Syllables In Tashlhiyt Berber And In Moroccan Arabic F. Dell, M. Elmedlaoui, 2012-12-06 This book is intended primarily as an original contribution to the investigation of the phonology of the two main languages spoken in Morocco. Its central topic is syllable structure. Our theoretical outlook is that of generative phonology. Most of the book deals with Tashlhiyt Berber. This language has a syllable structure with properties which are highly unusual as seen from the vantage point of better studied languages on which most theorizing about syllabification is based. On the one hand, complex consonant sequences are a common occurrence in the surface representations. On the other hand, syllable structure is very simple: only one distinctive feature bundle (phoneme) may occur in the onset, the nucleus or the coda. The way these two conflicting demands are reconciled is by allowing vowelless syllables. Any consonant may act as a syllable nucleus. When a string is syllabified, nuclear status is preferentially assigned to the segments with a higher degree of sonority than their neighbours. Consider for instance the expression below, which is a complete sentence meaning 'remove it, and eat it'.
m kks t t ss t t k st s t k k t t s slt
The sentence must be pronounced voiceless throughout, as indicated by the IPA transcription between square brackets. The syllabic parse given after the IPA transcription indicates that the sentence comprises four syllables: syllable nuclei are underlined. The differences between the dialects of Berber have to do primarily with the phonology and the lexicon.

Syllables in Tashlhiyt Berber and in Moroccan Arabic F. Dell, M. Elmedlaoui, 2002-12-31 Language Acquisition at the Interfaces Jiyoung Choi, Hamida Demirdache, Oana Lungu, 2018-04-18 This volume is a collection of papers presented at the 12th Generative Approaches to Language Acquisition Conference held at the University of Nantes, France, in 2015. Language acquisition, a field of inquiry that has witnessed continuous growth during the past four decades, is central to building a detailed understanding of the human amazing capacity to develop language. The papers gathered here reflect the current research in the field of first, second, and heritage language acquisition, addressing a variety of topics in syntax, semantics, phonology, and their interfaces from a wide range of languages such as Tashlhiyt Berber, English, German, Italian, Japanese, Mandarin, European Portuguese, Heritage Portuguese, Romanian, Serbian, Heritage Sign Language, and Yidj. This volume will thus serve as a valuable reference guide to all scholars interested in first, second, bilingual language acquisition, multilingualism, heritage languages, sign language, language pathology and impairment, and experimental research in linguistics.

Tonal placement in Tashlhiyt Timo B. Roettger, 2017 In most languages, words contain vowels, elements of high intensity with rich harmonic structure enabling the perceptual retrieval of pitch. By contrast, in Tashlhiyt, a Berber language, words can be composed entirely of voiceless segments. When an utterance consists of such words, the phonetic opportunity for the execution of intonational pitch movements is exceptionally limited. This book explores, in a series of production and perception experiments, how these typologically rare phonotactic patterns interact with intonational aspects of linguistic structure. It turns out that Tashlhiyt allows for a tremendously flexible placement of tonal events. Observed intonational structures can be conceived of as different solutions to a functional dilemma The requirement to realise meaningful pitch movements in certain positions and the extent to which segments lend themselves to a clear manifestation of these pitch movements
