Sweet Track To Glastonbury:

Sweet Track to Glastonbury Bryony Coles, John M. Coles, 1986 Sweet Track to Glastonbury, by Bryony and John Coles (pbk). Bryony Coles, John Coles, 1988 Preserving Archaeological Remains in Situ David Gregory, 2017-07-05
The PARIS 4 conference which took place at the National Museum of Denmark in 2011 attracted over 100 participants from 18 countries. Delegates presented and discussed the latest developments in the field of Preserving Archaeological Remains In Situ. These proceedings explore four major themes: rates of degradation in archaeological remains and the limits of acceptable change; the techniques and duration of monitoring on archaeological sites; the role of multinational standards when the sites and national legislations are so variable; reviewing the effectiveness of in situ preservation after nearly two decades of research. A special issue of Conservation and Management of Archaeological Sites Vol 14 Nos 1-4 Wessex to 1000 AD Barry Cunliffe, 2016-07-01 Wessex, the ancient counties of Dorset, Somerset, Wiltshire, Hampshire and Berkshire, is remarkable for its economic and social cohesion as a region and for the extraordinary wealth of its ancient remains. In this authoritative survey, Barry Cunliffe sets the great monuments and famous sites in their full cultural context. His chief concern, however, is to interpret the landscape of the region and the people who over so many centuries created it. In his hands, it becomes an archaeological artefact as eloquent as Avebury and Stonehenge themselves. Late Quaternary Environmental Change Martin Bell, M.J.C. Walker, 2014-07-10 Late Quaternary Environmental Change addresses the interaction between human agency and other environmental factors in the landscapes, particularly of the temperate zone. Taking an ecological approach, the authors cover the last 20,000 years during which the climate has shifted from arctic severity to the conditions of the present interglacial environment. The Shapwick Project, Somerset Christopher Gerrard, 2017-10-24 This book provides an introduction to the Shapwick Project's objectives, geographical background and previous work in the Somerset. It deals with excavations in the outlying parish and focuses on work in the village at Shapwick House. The Wounded Thorn Fay Sampson, 2015-06-01 A retired teacher and her friend are caught up in a mystery when they visit Glastonbury, one of Britain's most fascinating historical sites. Hilary is a recently retired teacher and with time on her hands and her husband away doing volunteer work in war-torn Gaza, she needs a distraction. So she invites her good friend Veronica, a recent widow, to accompany her on a trip to Glastonbury to see the ancient sights. The pair is saddened to discover that the sacred Glastonbury Thorn tree has been severely damaged and they wonder whether other local historic sites are under threat too. But they are unprepared for the shocking discovery Hilary makes at the Chalice Well: an abandoned bag containing a bomb. Who is to blame? A foreign tourist? An eccentric pagan author? Or an angry local who resents that a Christian place has been overrun by other beliefs? Hilary and Veronica just want to enjoy their holiday, but they're about to be pulled into a mystery. Physical Geography of Somerset, Environment, Archaeology and Landscape: Papers in honour of Professor Martin Bell Catherine Barnett, Thomas Walker, 2021-10-21 Dedicated to Martin Bell, University of Reading, this book outlines how wetland and inland environments can be related and investigated using multi method approaches Papers fall under three themes coastal and intertidal archaeology mobility and human environment relationships heritage resource management nature conservation and rewilding

Making One's Way in the World Martin Bell, 2020-02-28 The book draws on the evidence of landscape archaeology palaeoenvironmental studies ethnohistory and animal tracking to address the neglected topic of how we identify and interpret past patterns of movement in the landscape It challenges the pessimism of previous generations which regarded prehistoric routes such as hollow ways as generally undatable The premise is that archaeologists tend to focus on sites while neglecting the patterns of habitual movement that made them part of living landscapes Evidence of past movement is considered in a multi scalar way from the individual footprint to the long distance path including the traces created in vegetation by animal and human movement It is argued that routes may be perpetuated over long timescales creating landscape structures which influence the activities of subsequent generations In other instances radical changes of axes of communication and landscape structures provide evidence of upheaval and social change Palaeoenvironmental and ethnohistorical evidence from the American North West coast sets the scene with evidence for the effects of burning animal movement faeces deposition and transplantation which can create readable routes along which are favoured resources Evidence from European hunter gatherer sites hints at similar practices of niche construction on a range of spatial scales On a local scale footprints help to establish axes of movement the locations of lost settlements and activity areas Wood trackways likewise provide evidence of favoured patterns of movement and past settlement location Among early farming communities alignments of burial mounds enclosure entrances and other monuments indicate axes of communication From the middle Bronze Age in Europe there is more clearly defined evidence of trackways flanked by ditches and fields

Landscape scale survey and excavation enables the dating of trackways using spatial relationships with dated features and many examples indicate long term continuity of routeways Where fields flank routeways a range of methods including scientific approaches provide dates Prehistorians have often assumed that Ridgeways provided the main axes of early movement but there is little evidence for their early origins and rather better evidence for early routes crossing topography and providing connections between different environmental zones The book concludes with a case study of the Weald of South East England which demonstrates that some axes of cross topographic movement used as droveways and generally considered as early medieval can be shown to be of prehistoric origin One reason that dryland routes have proved difficult to recognise is that insufficient attention has been paid to the parts played by riverine and maritime longer distance communication It is argued that understanding the origins of the paths we use today contributes to appreciation of the distinctive qualities of landscapes Appreciation will help to bring about effective strategies for conservation of mutual benefit to people and wildlife by maintaining and enhancing corridors of connectivity between different landscape zones including fragmented nature reserves and valued places In these ways an understanding of past routeways can contribute to sustainable landscapes communities and quality of life

Interpreting the English Village Mick Aston, Christopher Gerrard, 2013-02-07 An original and approachable account of how archaeology can tell the story of the English village Shapwick lies in the middle of Somerset next to the important monastic centre of Glastonbury the abbey owned the manor for 800 years from the 8th to the 16th century and its abbots and officials had a great influence on the lives of the peasants who lived there It is possible that abbot Dunstan one of the great reformers of tenth century monasticism directed the planning of the village The Shapwick Project examined the development and history of an English parish and village over a ten thousand year period This was a truly multi disciplinary project Not only were a battery of archaeological and historical techniques explored such as field walking test pitting archaeological excavation aerial reconnaissance documentary research and cartographic analysis but numerous other techniques such as building analysis dendrochronological dating and soil analysis were undertaken on a large scale The result is a fascinating study about how the community lived and prospered in Shapwick In addition we learn how a group of enthusiastic and dedicated scholars unravelled this story As such there is much here to inspire and enthuse others who might want to embark on a landscape study of a parish or village area Seven of the ten chapters begin with a fictional vignette to bring the story of the village to life Text boxes elucidate re occurring themes and techniques Extensively illustrated in colour including 100 full page images
