Taking A Part:

Taking a Part David Green, Maxine Green, 2000 Young people are a marginalized group They are often apart from the Church rather than a part of the Church The thought that young people might be able to help others in the Church in real and dynamic ways is rarely considered In an accessible and readable way the authors use theories from sociology psychology and anthropology to throw light on this key issue of participation in the Church Alongside the theory Taking A Part features thought provoking contributions from young people and youth workers who relate their experience of Church and offer successful examples of their own active contributions to Church life This is set within a theological context which draws on the biblical story of the talents Taking A Part continues the challenge to the Church of exploring new ways of building relationships with young people first brought to light in Youth A Part

Taking [A]part John McCarthy, Peter Wright, 2024-07-02 A critical inquiry into the value and experience of participation in design research In Taking A part John McCarthy and Peter Wright consider a series of boundary pushing research projects in human computer interaction HCI in which the design of digital technology is used to inquire into participative experience McCarthy and Wright view all of these projects which range from the public and performative to the private and interpersonal through the critical lens of participation Taking participation in all its variety as the generative and critical concept allows them to examine the projects as a part of a coherent responsive movement allied with other emerging movements in DIY culture and participatory art Their investigation leads them to rethink such traditional HCI categories as designer and user maker and developer researcher and participant characterizing these relationships instead as mutually responsive and dialogical McCarthy and Wright explore four genres of participation understanding the other building relationships belonging in community and participating in publics and they examine participatory projects that exemplify each genre These include the Humanaquarium a participatory musical performance the Personhood project in which a researcher and a couple explored the experience of living with dementia the Prayer Companion project which developed a technology to inform the prayer life of cloistered nuns and the development of social media to support participatory publics in settings that range from reality game show fans to on line deliberative democracies

Active and Passive Citizens Richard

Tuck, 2024-04-30 A powerful case for why majority rule not representation is the defining feature of democratic politics The idea that democratic governance rests on active self rule by citizens plays surprisingly little part in current theories of democracy which instead stress the importance of representation by elected appointed or randomly selected bodies such as legislatures courts and juries This would have astonished eighteenth century theorists of democracy who viewed universal suffrage and majoritarian voting as the sole criteria for democratic politics Active and Passive Citizens defends the view of these earlier thinkers asserting that individual agency is the very essence of democracy In this provocative and lucidly argued book Richard Tuck draws on the distinction made by the Abb Siey s a leading political theorist of the French Revolution between active citizens the electorate and passive ones those who are represented by the institutions of the state Tuck traces our current representative view of democracy to Siey s and contrasts him with Rousseau a theorist of active self rule by the people Tuck argues that modern theories of democracy have effectively turned us into passive citizens and calls for a renewal of a majoritarian democracy that realizes the full potential of active citizenship Based on the prestigious Tanner Lectures delivered at Princeton University s Center for Human Values Active and Passive Citizens is edited and introduced by Stephen Macedo and includes commentary by political theorists Simone Chambers Joshua Cohen John Ferejohn and Melissa Schwartzberg
