Global politics in the information age Mark J. Lacy, Peter Wilkin, 2024-07-30 Global politics in the information age available in paperback for the first time presents a provocative and wide ranging introduction to the notion that information technologies are creating new formations of power control and resistance across the planet The essays ranging from the language used by the Bush administration to shape the war on terror the attempts to control the circulation of informational products the strategies of media management deployed to shape how the war in Iraq during 2003 was presented in the public sphere through to the attempts to brand economic globalisation and strategies of resistance developed by the anti globalisation movement unearth the new transformations that are unfolding in the twenty first century This collection of essays brings together academics working across the social sciences from International Relations Political Economy Sociology and Media Studies to provide the reader with a number of different perspectives on the way that flows of images capital ideologies and informational goods are creating global spaces of control and resistance The book seeks to rethink approaches to global politics that see information society as closing down spaces of resistance while at the same time exploring the new formations of power that informational society is making possible The book offers clearly explained theoretical insight into the debates that are shaping discussion on global politics and information society with case studies that will be of interest to the student seeking to make sense of the changes that are unfolding

Public Administration in an Information Age I. Th. M. Snellen, Wim B. H. J. van de Donk, 1998 This book is a joint effort of researchers who have been involved in research projects and programmes that have been trying to chart and reflect upon the implications of Information and Communication Technologies ICTs for Public Administration Tilburg Rotterdam Kassel Irvine Nottingham Glasgow Since the fifties computers had largely facilitated and the transformation of the minimal Night Watch state into the modern Welfare state through their contribution to their effectivity productivity and efficiency In most Handbooks of Public Administration computers are seen as neutral instruments and most of the time the role of computer technologies in the transformation of public administration is completely neglected This deafening silence is a great contrast with the way ICT s are actually changing public administration The faster the developments in a field of study are the more difficult it is to let the theories related to that field of study mature In such circumstances most statements will remain provisional and context dependent 25 years of research in Irvine California and Kassel Germany and more than 10 years of research in Tilburg Rotterdam The Netherlands and about seven years of research in Glasgow Nottingham the United Kingdom nonetheless enables the presentation of a modest image of public administration as it is entering the information age Researchers in each of these groups have nevertheless not stopped trying to phrase theories about the implications of informatization for public administration with a more or less large scope that are robust in different contexts and over longer periods of time These results and theories covering a broad set of elements of the body of knowledge of public administration are presented in this volume As the authors try to demonstrate in this book informatization developments in public administration do not only challenge the existing body of knowledge of the public administration discipline but they are also opening up new perspectives and paradigms for the study of public administration

Nuclear Weapons in the Information Age Stephen J. Cimbala, 2012-02-02 In today's information age the coexistence of nuclear weapons with advanced conventional weapons and information based concepts of warfare is a military contradiction Nuclear deterrence was initially predicated on geopolitical military and technical assumptions These were based on Cold War politics rational deterrence theory the concept of mutual vulnerability and the fact that information and technology diffusion were limited Today however far from being obsolete nuclear and other weapons of mass destruction have not only survived but have become weapons for states that face security threats including perceived threats of nuclear blackmail or expectation of conflicts This study focuses on this unplanned coexistence of two distinct arts of war including the possibility that states like the U S may be held hostage to nuclear blackmail by outlier regimes or terrorists such as North Korea It shows that restricting nuclear proliferation should still be on the agenda of policymakers and calls for a revitalized global nonproliferation regime This unique survey by a leading expert will appeal to anyone interested in arms control nuclear proliferation and defense policy
