

Freudian Psychoanalytic Theory

Sigmund Freud (1856-1939) and his followers: The emphasis is on the unconscious determinants of behavior and the primacy of early childhood experiences, on the dynamic interaction of components of the psyche as they move through psychosexual stages of development, and on the use of defense mechanisms to protect the ego.

Freud's psychoanalytic model has three major components:
the structure of the personality
the defense mechanisms
the stages of psychosexual development

Freud's Structure of the Mind: id, ego, superego. "Smooth integration of these three components minimizes anxiety and intrapsychic conflicts. The underlying unconscious conflicts, the anxiety that results and the defense mechanisms activated result in neurosis or neurotic disorders. (The term neurosis was dropped from the DSM in 1980).

In Sigmund Freud's topographical model of personality, the ego is the aspect of personality that deals with reality. While doing this, the ego also has to cope with the conflicting demands of the id and the superego. The id seeks to fulfill all wants, needs, and impulses while the superego tries to get the ego to act in an idealistic and moral manner.

What happens when the ego cannot deal with the demands of our desires, the constraints of reality, and our own moral standards? According to Freud, anxiety is an unpleasant inner state that people seek to avoid. Anxiety acts as a signal to the ego that things are not going right.

Freud identified three types of anxiety:

Neurotic anxiety is the unconscious worry that we will lose control of the id's urges, resulting in punishment for inappropriate behavior.

Reality anxiety is fear of real-world events. The cause of this anxiety is usually easily identified. For example, a person might fear receiving a dog bite when they are near a menacing dog. The most common way of reducing this anxiety is to avoid the threatening object.

Moral anxiety involves a fear of violating our own moral principles.

Freud's theory of personality has been widely criticized. Some of the criticisms are listed below.

Genius After Psychoanalysis K. Daniel Cho, 2024-10-17 Develops a new psychoanalytic theory of genius a concept that is often invoked and pervasive in popular culture but which is rarely scrutinized in depth In the absence of this scrutiny genius has come to be understood as exceptional talent or intelligence an elitist notion Genius After Psychoanalysis intervenes in this debate by offering a new account of genius Drawing on the work of Sigmund Freud and Jacques Lacan K Daniel Cho argues that genius is not exceptional talent or intelligence but is related to and illuminated by the psychological concept of sublimation where the unpleasures that arise when our intellectual products fail become themselves pleasurable Beginning with a close examination of Freud's work on Leonardo da Vinci Cho analyzes film art our relationship to nature politics group psychology love and philosophy to demonstrate that genius far from an elitist notion is universally available through a different approach to ideas of imperfection disappointment and failure Genius After Psychoanalysis is a bold new intervention on a culturally central but understudied topic      Talent and Genius. The
