Talking About Literacy Principles And Practices Of Adult Literacy Education:

Talking About Literacy Jane Mace, 2003-08-29 Talking about Literacy re examines dominant notions of what literacy is and challenges the problem solution reflex to the issue the problem is illiteracy the solution is more literacy Literacy has enormous emotional and political associations and the job of literacy educator often concerns changing attitudes and challenging prejudices whether in the form of publicity strategies counselling new students or in curriculum design In short adult literacy education means not only teaching courses like fresh start basic skills study skills communication skills language support and return to study but also designing strategies to encourage people to see that these courses may meet their own interests and educating them and others to rethink their own negative attitudes to illiteracy The book looks in detail in at five principles put forward by Jane Mace as central to the education of people who often can read but wish they could read better who technically can write but have a desire to do so with more expression and coherence These principles focus on five themes context inquiry authorship equality and community Since it is all too easy for literacy education involving adults who do not have formal qualifications to stop short of teaching techniques for correct writing these principles mean taking seriously a view that adult students are writers as well as readers that they have an entitlement to be read as well as to read others

Teaching Adult Literacy: A Teacher Education Handbook Hughes, Nora, Schwab, Irene, 2010-02-01 Offers guidance on how to work with adult learners to develop literacy skills and includes case studies of real student experiences and practical suggestions for teaching planning and assessment

Reader's Guide to the Social Sciences Jonathan Michie, 2014-02-03 This 2 volume work includes approximately 1 200 entries in A Z order critically reviewing the literature on specific topics from abortion to world systems theory In addition nine major entries cover each of the major disciplines political economy management and business human geography politics sociology law psychology organizational behavior and the history and development of the social sciences in a broader sense

Reading Circles, Novels and Adult Reading Development Sam Duncan, 2012-02-23 Adult literacy teachers are constantly searching for effective engaging and distinctly adult ways to develop adult emergent reading and for at least the past two hundred years adults have formed themselves into reading circles to read and discuss novels on a weekly or monthly basis Why then are reading circles rarely used or studied in formal adult literacy provision This book explores adult reading development novel reading and reading circles in the context of a wider examination of reading pedagogies and practices in the English speaking world It discusses reading as both an individual and a communal act and investigates the relationship between literature and literacy development practice and pedagogy including a reassessment of the controversial approaches of reading aloud and phonics for adults Sam Duncan reviews a case study of an adult reading circle in a large London further education college and identifies the wider implications for the teaching and learning of adult emergent reading for the use and understanding of reading circles and for how we understand the novel reading experience more broadly

Student Writing Theresa M. Lillis, 2002-01-04 Student Writing presents an accessible and thought provoking study of academic writing practices Informed by composition research from the US and academic literacies studies from the UK the book challenges current official discourse on writing as a skill Lillis argues for an approach which sees student writing as social practice The book draws extensively on a three year study with ten non traditional students in higher education and their experience of academic writing Using case study material including literacy history interviews extended discussions with students about their writing of discipline specific essays and extracts from essays Lillis identifies the following as three significant dimensions to academic writing Access to higher education and to its language and literacy representational resources Regulation of meaning making in academic writing Desire for participation in higher education and for choices over ways of meaning in academic writing Student Writing access regulation desire raises questions about why academics write as they do who benefits from such writing which meanings are valued and how on what terms outsiders get to be insiders and at what costs

Working with Experience David Boud, Nod Miller, 1996 Everyday we are confronted with problems and challenges which we address by drawing on our experience and by using this experience to find ways of learning what to do in new circumstances Learning through experience is the normal commonplace approach to learning and we take it for granted Whilst much is known about teaching and being taught far less attention has been given to learning in context in particular to learning outside the classroom Yet this is in fact where most learning takes place One especially neglected area is the role which people other than the learner play in facilitating learning This role is undertaken not only by teachers trainers parents and counsellors but also by managers supervisors care givers and friends This book brings together the experiences of a number of practitioners who write from often strongly contrasting perspectives these include feminism Marxism critical pedagogy post modernism and Gestalt humanistic clinical and transpersonal psychology The authors also come from a wide range of international backgrounds including adult higher and teacher education community work organisational development and psychotherapy Each chapter is grounded not only in professional practice and in theory but also in personal experience Overall then the book provides fascinating insights into what some good practitioners do to promote learning and how they make sense of this David Boud is professor in the School of Adult Education University of Technology Sydney Nod Miller is Professor in the Department of Innovation Studies University of East London

Adult Education and Lifelong Learning Peter Jarvis, 2024-11-22 Adult Education and Lifelong Learning is regarded as one of the most widely used textbooks about adult education Now part of the Routledge Education Classic Edition series this key title combines the practical and philosophical to cover all areas related to the topic including how we understand people as learners how to teach adults curriculum planning distance education and assessment It doesn't shy away from complexity and asks difficult questions to provoke the reader into thinking about what lifelong learning really means Not your basic how to book it combines practice with theory and points the way to further studies and engagement in the field With a new introduction by Professor Sam Duncan to contextualise the work this is a must read text for all education students as well as practitioners and researchers in adult education and lifelong learning

Situated Literacies David Barton, Mary Hamilton, Roz Ivanic, 2005-08-04 Situated Literacies is a rich and varied collection of key writings from leading international scholars in the field of literacy Each contribution written in a clear accessible style makes the link between literacies in specific contexts and broader social practices Detailed ethnographic studies of a wide variety of specific situations all involving real texts and lived practices are balanced with general claims about the nature of literacy Contributors address a coherent set of issues the visual and material aspects of literacy concepts of time and space in relation to literacy the functions of literacies in shaping and sustaining identities in communities of practice the relationship between texts and the practices associated with their use the role of discourse analysis on literacy studies These studies along with a foreword by Denny Taylor make a timely and important contribution to literacy theory and suggest directions for the further development of the field Situated Literacies is essential reading for anyone involved in literary education
