

HIGHLY QUALIFIED PRAISE FOR

snobbery

"What Joseph Epstein calls snobbery, I should much prefer to call snobbishness, the various manifestations of which he would, you 'ignorant beast,' is over in a second. Still, Mr. Epstein is uncommonly well equipped with a certain rough-hewn intelligence, which renders him a man to whom, I should say, not everything is lost."

— Henry James

"Indiscreetly delighted by paradox, of which the social world is still too much habituated, Mr. Epstein is, I discover, capable every so often of making off a sentence that arrests the attention — arrests it, alas, and the too easy one is free to wonder. His no doubt justified concern as to the point of this essentially critical subject is, it goes without saying, thoroughly to be applauded."

— Owen Wilde

"Mr. Epstein quotes me rather frequently in his handsomely arranged little book, whether he understands me or not. I cannot wonder, especially, since I have never been to America, and cannot speak to the accuracy of his pronouncements about the particular of the social preoccupations in that foreign country. The book's framework, as it speaks, seems to me sound as far as it goes, though I suppose to say this suggests that it ought to have gone a deal further than this. In those matters, what of us can be said to have gone far enough?"

— Marcel Proust

"The most serious of the past hundred years — myself not least among them — Joseph Epstein's essays are in the lower middle class, this class always eager to get a leg up, if only to be able to place an ill-chosen foot on the neck of those below and a knee in the groin of those above."

— Noel Coward
