introduces students to some of the many indigenous peoples in North America. The book is organized into parts corresponding to regional divisions within which similar though not identical cultural practices developed. Each part opens with an overview of the topography, climate, and natural resources in the area and describes the range of cultural practices and beliefs grounded in the area. Subsequent chapters are devoted to specific tribal groups, their history, and the conditions of contemporary Native communities. Nancy Bonvillian provides context for the regional and tribe-specific chapters through a brief overview of Native American history beginning around 1500 and covering the early period of European exploration and colonization. She details both U.S. and Canadian policies affecting the lives, cultures, and survival of more than five hundred Native nations on this continent. Finally, she offers up-to-date demographics and addresses significant social, economic, and political issues concerning Native communities. The second edition features new material throughout, including a new two-chapter section on the Native nations of the Plateau, expanded introductory material addressing topics such as climate change, and recent Supreme Court decisions. Up-to-date demographic and economic data and more.

Incest Avoidance and the Incest Taboos Arthur P. Wolf, 2014-04-16 Why do most people never have sex with close relatives? And why do they disapprove of other people doing so? Incest Avoidance and Incest Taboos investigates our human inclination to avoid incest and the powerful taboo against incest found in all societies. Both subjects stir strong feelings and vigorous arguments within and beyond academic circles. With great clarity, Wolf lays out the modern assumptions about both, concluding that all previous approaches lack precision and balance on insecure evidence. Researchers he calls constitutionalists explain human incest avoidance by biologically based natural aversion but fail to explain incest taboos as cultural universals. By contrast, conventionalists ignore the evolutionary roots of avoidance and assume that incest avoidant behavior is guided solely by cultural taboos. Both theories are incomplete. Wolf tests his own theory with three natural experiments: incestuous marriage in Morocco, the rarity of marriage within Israeli kibbutz peer groups, and minor marriages in which baby girls were raised by their future mother-in-law to marry an adoptive brother in China and Taiwan. These cross-cultural comparisons complete his original and intellectually rich theory of incest, one that marries biology and culture by accounting for both avoidance and taboo.

A Theory Of Northern Athapaskan Prehistory John W. Ives, 2019-05-20 This book explores the conceptual basis for the events and processes in the prehistory of the Athapaskans, one of the most widespread peoples in western North America. The author bases his research on the premise that social structure is not passively dependent on the technological and economic bases of society and argues that ultimately kinship.

Boreal Forest Adaptations A. Theodore Steegman, 2013-06-29 The chapters making up this volume are not just a collection of parts which were more or less on the same topic and happened to be available for cobbling together. Instead, they were written especially for it. We had before us, from the beginning, the goal of creating a synthesis of interest to students of environmental adaptation, but adaptation broadly construed and to one of the world's difficult environments, the boreal forest. This is anthropology, but not anthropology of the old school A word of explanation may be in order Ecologists and those in traditional biological sciences may find some of what follows to be familiar in format and in intellectual approach Others of our perspectives may feel less comfortable and in fact may seem to be refugees from scholarship more of the sort pursued by historians All that is quite true and rather nicely reflects the dualities and potential of anthropology as a discipline We have always drawn strength from the arts as well as the sciences We have more recently tried to identify biological templates for human behavior and to understand the reciprocal impact of behavior on the human organism Anthropology is a discipline part art and part science which is at once historical behavioral societal and biological No species has left a clearer path through time than has ours and none has made its way through such a diversity of challenging environments Determining how humanity has managed to do that is our goal

Indigenous Religious Musics Graham Harvey, 2017-09-08 Celebrating the diversity of indigenous nations cultures and religions the essays which comprise this volume discuss the musics performed by a wide variety of peoples as an integral part of their cultural traditions These include examinations of the various styles of Maori Inuit and Australian Aboriginal musics and the role of music in Korean Shaman rituals Indeed music forms a key component of many such rituals and belief systems and examples of these are explored amongst the peoples of Uganda Amazonia and Africa Through analysis of these rituals and the part music plays in them the essays also open up further themes including social groupings and gender divisions and engage with issues and debates on how we define and approach the study of indigeneity religiosity and music With downloadable resources featuring some of the music discussed in the book and further information on other available recordings this is a book which gives readers the opportunity to gain a richer experience of the lived realities of indigenous religious musics
