Savage,2011-09-02 The intent behind this book is to provide grist for the mill for research students and other interested readers Chapter one by author Allan Savage presents an understanding of the social construction of religious activity which maintains that social construction of religion arises from a dialectical engagement within the world from a phenomenological philosophical point of view Co author Peter Stuart presents a classical and traditional point of view and readers expecting academic accord between the authors will be disappointed A further rationale for writing this book is that both Savage and Stuart desire to express their personal convictions in the public forum Both have interests in the ebb and flow of civilization especially as it pertains to the place of faith religion politics and a variety of social phenomena including economics culture gender ethnicity and the family as well as the ebb and flow of money power property and prestige as articulated throughout history They believe that writing about the place of faith and religion in French Canada is crucial if one is to understand the place that this keystone civilization occupies within confederation and its enduring ambivalence regarding its belonging or not to Canada

The Social Construction of Virtue George W.

Noblit, Van O. Dempsey, 1996-09-26 It's time to face an inevitable conclusion School reform does not reform schools That's because reform movements conceive of schools as being about transmitting knowledge Yet schools are not primarily about knowledge They are about the construction of meaning and morality in the lives of students and communities In this book the authors argue that to break this recycling of reform efforts we must understand how schools construct moral life The focus is on two elementary schools Rougemont an historically African American school that was closed during school desegregation in the 1970s and Cedar Grove an historically white school to which the former Rougemont students were sent Described are the histories of these schools the communities in which they are located and some of the people who influenced and were influenced by the schools From those contexts the authors then make explicit the virtues that these communities and schools constructed and valued and describe how those virtues came to influence lives The oral histories of the two schools and their communities provide the basis of a novel critique of the value conflict that has characterized educational reform in this country The social construction of virtue offers an alternative perspective on the moral purpose of schooling in America
