Songbook Urbana 84:

Proust's Songbook Jennifer Rushworth, 2024-06-04 In Proust's Songbook Jennifer Rushworth analyzes and theorizes the presence and role of songs in Marcel Proust's novel la recherche du temps perdu In Search of Lost Time. Instead of focusing on instrumental music and large scale forms such as symphonies and opera as is common in Proust musical studies, Rushworth argues for the centrality of songs and lyrics in Proust's opus. Her work analyzes the ways in which the author inserted songs at key turning points in his novel and how he drew inspiration from contemporary composers and theorists of song. Rushworth presents detailed readings of five moments of song in la recherche du temps perdu, highlighting the songs' significance by paying close attention to their lyrics, music, composers, and histories. Rushworth interprets these episodes through theoretical reflections on song and voice, drawing particularly from the works of Reynaldo Hahn and Roland Barthes. She argues that songs in Proust's novel are connected and resonate with one another across the different volumes yet also shows how song for Proust is a solo, amateur, and intimate affair. In addition, she points to Proust's juxtapositions of songs with meditations on the notion of mauvaise musique (bad music) to demonstrate the existence of a blurred boundary between songs that are popular and songs that are art. According to Rushworth, a song for Proust has a special relation to repetition and memory due to its typical brevity, and that song itself becomes a mode of resistance in la Recherche, especially on the part of characters in the face of family and familial expectations. She also defines the songs in Proust's novel as songs of farewell, noting that to sing farewell is a means to resist the very parting that is being expressed and demonstrates how songs in formal terms resist the forward impetus of narrative. Urbana Songbook 1984 Robert Fryling, 1984. 106 hymns with music and guitar chords.

Songbook Marisa Galvez, 2020-03-04 How medieval songbooks were composed in collaboration with the community and across languages and societies. Eloquent clearly argued. Times Literary Supplement. Today we usually think of a book of poems as composed by a poet rather than assembled or adapted by a network of poets and readers. But the earliest European vernacular poetries challenge these assumptions. Medieval songbooks remind us how lyric poetry was once communally produced and received, a collaboration of artists, performers, live audiences, and readers stretching across languages and societies. The only comparative study of its kind, Songbook treats what poetry was before the emergence of the modern category of poetry: that is, how vernacular songbooks of the thirteenth to fifteenth centuries shaped our modern understanding of poetry by establishing expectations of what is a poem, what is a poet, and what is lyric poetry itself. Marisa Galvez analyzes the seminal songbooks representing the vernacular traditions of Occitan, Middle High German, and Castilian and tracks the process by which the songbook emerged from the original performance contexts of oral publication into a medium for preservation and finally into an established literary object. Galvez reveals that songbooks in ways that resonate with our modern practice of curated archives and playlists: they contain lyric music, images, and other nonlyric texts selected and ordered to reflect the local values and preferences of their readers. At a time when medievalists are reassessing the historical foundations of their field and especially the national literary canons established in the nineteenth century a new examination of the songbook's role in several vernacular traditions is more relevant than ever
