Stock Enhancement and Sea Ranching Kenneth M. Leber, Shuichi Kitada, H. L. Blankenship, Terje Svasand, 2008-04-15
The collapse of many of the World's fisheries continues to be of major concern and the enhancement of fish stocks through techniques such as ranching is of huge importance and interest across the globe. This important book, which contains fully peer reviewed and carefully edited papers from the 2nd International Symposium in Stock Enhancement and Sea Ranching, is broadly divided into sections covering the following areas: The present situation of stock enhancement; Seed quality and techniques for effective stocking; Health management of hatchery stocks; Methods for evaluating stocking effectiveness; Population management in stock enhancement and sea ranching; Management of stocked populations; Ecological interactions with wild stocks; Genetic management of hatchery and wild stocks; Socio-economics of stock enhancement; Case studies. Stock Enhancement and Sea Ranching has been written and edited by some of the world's foremost authorities in fisheries science and related areas and is essential reading for all fisheries scientists throughout the World. Fish biologists, marine and aquatic scientists, environmental biologists, ecologists, conservationists, aquaculture personnel and oceanographers will all find much of use and interest within this book. All libraries within universities and research establishments where these subjects are studied and taught should have copies of this book on their shelves.

Stock Enhancement and Sea Ranching Bari Howell, Erlend Moksness, Terje Svasand, 1999-09-15
Stock enhancement and sea ranching has been practised for decades for a wide variety of marine fish and invertebrate species in Japan and for salmonids. As a result, fisheries scientists and managers worldwide have been encouraged to use these techniques to increase the productivity of existing fisheries, to create new fisheries and to restore those that are no longer viable. Projects are now under way not only in Japan but on cod in Norway, striped mullet in Hawaii, red drum in Texas, white seabass in California, scallops in New Zealand, shrimp in China and sturgeons in the Caspian Sea, to name a few. This edited work, based on the first International Symposium on Stock Enhancement and Sea Ranching, presents and discusses advances in these techniques and their consequences and sets out to identify the most important priorities for future research.

Overview of Marine Stock Enhancement, Restocking and Sea Ranching in Ghana Berchie Asiedu, 2018
Fish stocks in Ghanaian waters are on the decline. There is therefore the need to rebuild the stocks through marine stock enhancement and restocking. Stock enhancement and restocking are the guarantee routes to revive the stock declining menace of the country. Other benefits will include sustainable employment, increase fishers' income, reduce poverty, ensure food security and promote national development. Species to be used for restocking is a major problem since the biology of the existing species is poorly understood. There are certain factors that must be taken into considerations if stock enhancement and restock programmes are to be successful namely existing fisheries management schemes socio economic factors institutional capacity and aquaculture development The potential for Ghana to create sustainable supplemental livelihoods through restocking or stock enhancement appears promising

Nations,2004-01-01 With coastal fisheries in decline around the world there is growing concern about how long current sources of seafood can supply world needs There is an increasing emphasis on restocking and aquaculture based stock enhancement as a way to rapidly replenish depleted fish stocks and increase fishery landings This publication contains case studies on the use of sea ranching and marine hatchery enhancement to generate income re establish fisheries and conserve aquatic biodiversity including studies from Norway Australia the Pacific Islands the Caspian Sea with an emphasis on Iran and Japan Ecological Aquaculture Barry A. Costa-Pierce,2008-04-15 As the world s demand for food from aquatic environments continues to increase the importance of performing aquaculture in an environmentally responsible manner also increases The aim of this important and thought provoking book is to stimulate discussion among aquaculture s modern scientific education and extension communities concerning the principles practices and policies needed to develop ecologically and socially sustainable aquaculture systems worldwide Ecological Aquaculture provides fascinating and valuable insights into primitive and often sustainable culture systems and ties these to modern large scale aquaculture systems The book is edited and authored to a considerable degree by Barry Costa Pierce who has assembled a team of some of the leading thinkers in the field providing information spanning a spectrum of activities from artisanal to high technology approaches to producing aquatic organisms in a balanced and environmentally friendly way Ecological Aquaculture is an essential purchase for all aquaculture personnel involved in commercial practical and research capacities Libraries in research establishments and universities where aquaculture biological environmental and aquatic sciences are studied and taught should have copies of this book available on their shelves Chinese (Taiwan) Yearbook of International Law and Affairs, Volume 28 (2010) ,2020-02-03 The Chinese Taiwan Yearbook of International Law and Affairs commenced

Marine Ecology Muhammet Turkoglu,Umur Önal,Ali İsmen,2018-08-01 During the last decades aquatic resources have been severely depleted due to human induced factors such as overexploitation and pollution and more recently due to deviations in the physicochemical parameters of oceans dramatic changes in weather patterns and melting of glaciers The effects of these man made factors are occurring in a relatively shorter time scale and in many cases are beyond the capacity of organisms to adapt to these deviations The majority of natural aquatic resources which are one of the most important food sources on the planet are being used to the extent that limits their capacity for regeneration Despite ongoing attempts towards developing strategies for long term management of aquatic resources all over the world efforts have met with limited success Thus the sustainable use of aquatic resources has become a very important reality considering a projected human population of 11 billion by the year 2100 With this reality in mind the purpose of this book is to shed more light on the field of marine ecology by emphasizing the diversity of aquatic life on earth and its importance both as part of a balanced ecosystem and as part of critical source of food on earth The book covers important findings discussions and reviews on a variety of subjects on environmental and competitive interactions of marine organisms at different trophic levels and their effects on the productivity dynamics and structure of marine ecosystems around the world Each chapter focuses on a specific case in the field of marine ecology and was written by researchers with years of experience in their respective fields We hope that academicians researchers and students as well as experts and professionals working in the field of marine ecology will benefit from these contributions We also hope that this book will inspire more studies to help better understand the marine environment and develop strategies to better protect this crucial element of life on earth
