"It is so beautiful—a style as lovely and pure as clear water and as rare. I think in its way it is a perfect book, and will be an underground classic, at least. Harriet Doerr's voice is utterly her own, but there is the faint shade of Katherine Anne Porter, lurking somewhere." — ALICE ADAMS

Feeling Susan L. Feagin, 2018-10-18 Feelings and other affective responses to a work of fiction are an important part appreciation and the capacity to inspire such responses is part of what is valuable about literary works of art Susan L Feagin's philosophical exploration of appreciation focusing specifically on its emotional or affective components asks us to consider aesthetic appreciation as getting the value out of the work Appreciation involves exercising abilities Feagin develops a psychological model for understanding how one becomes emotionally engaged with something one knows is fictional She stresses the importance of the role of imagination in producing affective responses Imagination is harnessed by the writer's choice of phrase or depiction of detail Feagin cites the work of Angela Carter Molly Keane Heinrich Böll Gabriel García Márquez and draws an extended example from Henry James She notes that not all responses to a work are relevant or appropriate and discusses a variety of ways responses may be assessed Even though assessing responses can stifle imagination and hence threaten spontaneity and the responses themselves the value of having affective responses to fiction depends upon our being able to make such assessments Whatever else we may gain appreciating a work getting the value
